

Further Consumer Credit Curbs Hinted As Being In Offing

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13 — A top official hinted today at further Federal Reserve Board consumer credit regulations as a means of avoiding "price fixing or government rationing."

Board Governor R. M. Evans, speaking in Atlantic City, said that restrictions could be increased if present ones are found inadequate.

Evans declared that credit

regulation is necessary to dampen inflation. He argued that restrictions "can help to maintain orderly markets and stability of costs and prices."

The Reserve Board official pointed out that "the regulation has been set up so that the terms and the items covered can be adjusted in the light of experience." Evans said:

"We are feeling our way along, starting out with what seems to be moderate restrictions. If these restrictions are found to be inadequate, they will be strengthened accordingly."

"If, later on, they are found to be more restrictive than is necessary, they will be relaxed. Our object is to maintain the flow of available goods at stable prices, if possible, without price fixing or government rationing."

Retailers, meanwhile, looked apprehensively at the government's steel allocation order and other restrictions and pleaded for at least a temporary stop in regulations.

The steel order, first post-war allocation directive, told producers to set aside between five and 25 percent of their output for defense purposes.

The order permits producers to sell 75 to 95 percent of their steel to civilian users, with the exact percentage depending on the type of steel produced.

William H. Harrison, chief of the National Production Authority, which issued the order, said the government stands ready to step up the allocation for defense needs if necessary.

Although the steel order will hit many fabricators and sellers, both wholesale and retail, their chief worry lay in consumer credit regulations.

Retail trade spokesmen told the government that any further tightening of credit regulations should be delayed until Dec. 8, to permit a close study of the situation.

M. I. Behrens, president of the National Retail Furniture Association, when a step further, demanding that restrictions be relaxed because, he said, they are "extreme" and "hit the poor man."

The retailers told Harrison that sales have been dropping since mid-September because of controls.

The steel order, even though it was issued in response to requests from both producers and consumers, will hit the civilian market through removal of some steel from normal channels.

Some sources have predicted as much as 25 percent curtailment in production of such goods as automobiles, refrigerators, and metal furniture.

Legion Raps Acheson

Diplomat's Ouster Being Demanded

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 13 — Some 100,000 tired American Legionnaires and their wives and families today began leaving Los Angeles where they blue-printed a stern program of future peace for the nation and elected Erle Coker Jr. of Dawson, Ga., as their new national commander.

The Legion closed its 32nd annual convention yesterday, casting the nation's foreign policy and demanding the ouster of Dean Acheson as secretary of state and an entire "reconstitution" of the State Department.

The attack came in a series of resolutions which also continued the Legion's drive for Universal Military Training and a state of preparedness to lessen considerably the odds of future wars.

The final session's first charge of dynamite came in the report of the foreign affairs committee. A shouting throng of delegates refused to accept the committee's wording of the clause on "reconstitution" of the State Department and, although not mentioning him by name, changed the resolution so as to demand the ouster of Acheson.

THE RESOLUTION in its original form condemned "secrecies of state, past and present," for failure to evaluate the dangers of Communism. By popular vote it was made to read to "condemn the secretary of state."

It was explained that Acheson

Lie-Detector Tests Booked For Follrod

Dale Follrod, 37, of Circleville Route 3, was to submit to lie-detector tests Friday in London.

Sheriff Charles Radcliff said he has ordered the test to double-check on the man's confession that he is a stolen livestock "fence."

Follrod has been accused of receiving and concealing stolen livestock in connection with a rustling gang which has struck in six known counties.

The local tenant farmer signed a confession of his activities shortly after arrest earlier this week, implicating several members of the alleged gang.

Meanwhile, a Ross County man was taken into custody late Thursday in his home and now is being held in Pickaway County jail for investigation.

Deputy Sheriff Carl Radcliff said the man is believed to be a member of the organization which has stolen an estimated "tens of thousands of dollars" worth of stock within the last few years.

Arrests also have been made in Clark and Champaign Counties, while other men in Logan, Union and Greene Counties are being investigated.

No formal accusations have been filed in the case other than those against Follrod. He has been held for Pickaway County grand jury on bonds totalling $6,000 on two counts of receiving and concealing livestock.

PLAN WORTH $24 MILLION

Lewis Bares New Welfare Deal For His Coal Miners

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13—John L. Lewis launched today a $24 million program of aid for disabled members of his United Mine Workers union and their dependents.

The new benefits probably will start flowing next month and will round out a four-part program financed by the UMW welfare fund which collects a 30-cents-a-ton royalty on all coal mined.

The $24 million project, which will provide rehabilitation and maintenance aid, marks the completion of a reorganization of the welfare fund.

On the basis of 500 million tons of coal output annually, the fund would have approximately $150 million a year to spend on retirement and disabled miners and their families.

The fund previously has been paying three other types of benefits: $1,000 death benefits; $100-a-month pensions, and hospital and medical care.

WELFARE officials have refused to disclose the costs of each part of the program. The fund has undergone a thorough overhauling since benefits were suspended last Fall and then resumed this Summer with the signing of a new two-year coal contract. Many phases were tightened up.

One source estimated that the rehabilitation and maintenance aid benefits announced today would cost about $2 million a month. No figures were available for the other activities of the fund.

Soviet Veto Of Lie Brings UN Confusion

LAKE SUCCESS, Oct. 13—Intensive private consultations are underway today to fill the United Nations secretary general's post following Russia's veto on re-naming Trygve Lie.

Soviet Delegate Jacob Malik vetoed Lie's reappointment to a second 5-year term in a closed session of the UN Security Council in the face of nine approving votes. Nationalist China abstained.

Expectations are that a race for the $40,000 post will develop, although Western delegations—including the United States—are strongly in favor of having the Norwegian Assembly extend the Norwegian's term indefinitely.

The outstanding candidates are Carlos P. Romulo of the Philippines, Sir Ramaswami and disabled miners and their families.

Hungarian Purge Said Verified

Reuters said Gen. Sandor Nogrady, Communist political chief of the Hungarian defense ministry, publicly acknowledged a recent purge in a speech yesterday.

Nogrady was quoted as saying: "Our corps of officers and generals was purged of traitors, imperialists, spies and other elements hostile to the people."

STRING OF SHIPS GUARDS TRUMAN FLIGHT

President's Airliner 'Independence' Lands Chief Executive In Honolulu

HONOLULU, Oct. 13 — President Truman arrived at Hickam Field, Honolulu, at 7:46 a. m. Hawaii time (12:46 p. m. EST) today enroute to a dramatic mid-Pacific conference with General Douglas MacArthur.

Four minutes after his plane, the Independence, made a smooth landing, the President walked down the ramp and was greeted by Gov. Ingram M. Stainback, Mayor Wilson Farrington and military dignitaries.

President Truman smilingly declined permission to Stainback to place one of Hawaii's traditional welcoming leis around his neck.

The President reached Honolulu after a swift flight from the Fairfield-Suisun, Cal., Air Force base where the Independence took off at 3:08 a. m. (EST).

A string of seven ships—three Coast Guard cutters, three Navy destroyers and one submarine—tracked the presidential plane on radar throughout the flight and maintained continuous radio contact.

The President expressed hope that his meeting with MacArthur will bring forth "some contribution to the peace of the world."

Scene of the conference was not officially announced for security reasons but it was believed it may be Wake Island.

Wake Island is only about 10 hours from MacArthur's Tokyo headquarters and a flight from Honolulu takes about eight hours.

MacArthur's Tokyo headquarters indicated the United Nations commander will leave the Japanese capital "some time Saturday" (Tokyo time) to meet the President.

The apparent conference will be a brief one as the President will be back in San Francisco either Monday night or Tuesday morning.

Mr. Truman is to spend the greater part of Tuesday putting the finishing touches on the foreign policy speech he will make at the San Francisco War Memorial Opera House at 11:30 p. m. (EST) Tuesday.

In this speech the President is expected to make a direct report to the American people on the outcome of his Far Eastern policy conference with MacArthur.

During the hours he spent at Fairfield-Suisun last night, Mr. Truman toured the base hospital where he shook hands and talked with more than a hundred litter cases newly arrived from the Korean war front.

Newsmen and photographers who met the President at the base were not allowed to accompany him on the hospital tour. White House Press Secretary Charles G. Ross explained Mr. Truman did not want to "make a stunt" of his tour.

Ross said the President autographed casts of the wounded and talked at length to them. (Continued on Page Two)

Ohio GOP Given Chance To Gain Congress Seats

COLUMBUS, Oct. 13—Republicans appear today to stand an excellent chance of regaining control of Ohio's congressional delegation in the Nov. 7 election.

The GOP's best bet is to recapture the traditionally Republican second district in Cincinnati, which in itself would reverse the 12-to-11 majority now held by the Democrats.

In addition, they stand a fighting chance of winning the sixth (Portsmouth) district and the ninth (Toledo) district.

The Republicans also could pick up the congress-at-large seat held by Rep. Stephen M.

Young, Cleveland Democrat. The GOP candidate is Former Congressman-at-Large George H. Bender, also of Cleveland, the Cuyahoga County GOP boss unseated by Young two years ago by 113,584 votes.

THE NINTH district, GOP hopes are heightened by the entry of Frazier Reams, former state welfare director under Democratic Governor Lausche during the latter's first term, as an independent candidate.

If Reams should split the Democratic vote with incumbent Congressman Thomas H. Burke, Former Congressman Homer A. Ramey could slip again into office.

By contrast, the Democrats' best hope of picking up a seat appears to lie in the 11th (south and southeastern Ohio) district, where Dr. Walter E. Brehm, Millersport Republican, who won by less than 1,200 votes two years ago, is currently under fire of Washington Columnist Drew Pearson on alleged kickback charges.

Brehm's opponent is young Mel G. Underwood Jr. of New Lexington, executive secretary to Governor Lausche in 1945-46 (Continued on Page Two)

Mighty Mo Again Paces Shelling

36 Other Ships Join Bombardment

TOKYO, Oct. 13—Red lifelines on Korea's northeast coast near Siberia and Manchuria were blasted for a second straight day by a 37-ship task fleet today as Allied troops to the south began a nutcracker drive to trap the remaining enemy army.

America's Battleship Missouri once again paced the new attacks from the sea against the peninsula's northeast corner. Additional hundreds of tons of shells and bombs smashed North Korean port, rail and industrial installations along a 130-mile coastal strip.

U. S. Navy headquarters in Tokyo declared Friday night that the paralyzing bombardment constitutes a "tremendous effort to implement the United Nations surrender demands" served twice on North Korea by Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

The Navy announcement hinted broadly that the shelling and carrier plane strikes will continue beyond their second day of action that has brought American war vessels within some 50 miles of Soviet Siberian waters.

Friday's renewed bombardments of the northeast coast came as South Korean troops far to the south smashed three miles inland from the captured eastern port of Wonsan.

THIS APPARENTLY was the start of a westward drive to slash clear across the peninsula to Pyongyang and thus keep thousands of enemy troops defending the approaches to the North Korean capital.

Sixty-five miles below Pyongyang, American troops captured the town of Hanpo, astride the main railroad to the Communist capital, and thereby cut the supply route for several thousand Reds fighting stubbornly at Kumchon.

Just before the Americans took Hanpo, 1,000 Communist troops moved out of that town four miles to the southeast to reinforce the defense of the Kumchon hub. They evidently walked into a trap without knowing it.

Hanpo fell to the U. S. First Cavalry Division's seventh regiment which rammed 17 miles above the 38th Parallel boundary and bypassed Kumchon in an "end run" move around the west flank.

Simultaneously, British and Australian troops of the British Commonwealth 27th Brigade outflanked Kumchon on the east and then wheeled westward in an effort to join the Americans at Hanpo.

Posse Seeks Missing Lad

BENNINGTON, Vt., Oct. 13—A large posse, aided by a bloodhound, pressed a frantic hunt today for a lightly-clad, eight-year-old boy lost in cold, rain-swept Vermont woodlands.

Paul Jepson Jr. vanished while his mother was leaving trash at the city dump. He was wearing only dungarees and a red wool shirt. The temperature dropped to 42 degrees during a right-long rain.

The dog followed the boy's trail for three miles along an unused logging road and then for a half-mile on a dirt road before it lost the scent.

Immediate Price-Wage Curbs Urged

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13—Immediate imposition of price and wage controls won the support today of the Senate's leading advocate of an excess profits tax on corporations.

Sen. O'Mahoney, (D) Wyo., chairman of the Joint Congressional Economic Committee, explained his decision this way:

"Price controls are bunglesome at best, but not having the tax, we ought to have controls right away."

O'Mahoney added that even if Congress pushes through a higher corporation tax when it reconvenes in November, some controls will have to go hand-in-hand with any tax curb on inflation.

Two other Senate authorities on price-wage controls said this week that both increased taxes and selective controls are urgently needed.

Sen. Flanders, (R) Vt., urged an increase in normal corporation taxes rather than an excess profits tax, coupled with a drive to boost sales of war bonds. Sen. Maybank, (D) S. C., Senate Banking Committee chairman, stressed the immediate need for controls.

O'Mahoney declared: "Our two greatest dangers are Communism and inflation. "We can control inflation most effectively through taxation. But we did not get a reasonable tax bill from Congress this year, and until we get one we are going to have to strengthen our controls."

O'Mahoney said that in his opinion the only thing holding up announcement of selective price-wage controls was the final selection of personnel to administer them.

showed that the fund that year spent $5,546,000 for death benefits; $64,206,000 for disability and widows' assistance; $30,366,000 on pensions, and $4,761,000 on hospital and medical care.

Miners are eligible for pensions at the age of 60 provided they have 20 years service, have retired since mid-1946 and have been employed for one year continuously immediately prior to their retirement. The latter restriction was added when pensions were resumed last Summer.

The program announced today contains an entirely new feature of cash grants for a disabled miner and his family while he is undergoing treatment at the expense of the hospital-medical portion of the welfare fund.

There will also be maintenance grants for the miner and his family in cases where ultimately it is determined that a UMW member is totally and permanently disabled.

The rehabilitation and maintenance grants are: $30 a month to the miner, $10 additional for his wife and $10 for each child under 18 or each incapacitated child over 18.

Maintenance cash benefits also were authorized for dependent children of deceased miners and for widows who are 50 years of age or older. The schedule calls for $40 a month for an eligible child living with a widowed mother, and for $10 for each additional dependent child.

Widows who are 50 or more and who have no dependent children are to receive $30 a month.

was not specifically mentioned in the resolution because it is against Legion policy to name a person in a report of censure.

After William Varity, chairman of the committee, read the report, Delegate George Clear of Georgia touched off the excitement. He demanded that the wording be changed to "secretary," thus pinning the Legion's condemnation directly on Acheson.

"We should name names," should John Steele, former Illinois governor.

Outgoing National Commander George N. Craig said that "the wording of the resolution as changed will leave no doubt as to who is meant."

Morpheus took the blame for a two-car crash on North Court street at 4:30 a. m. Friday.

Officer Harold Green said an auto driven by Frank Grooms, 21, of Stoutsville, rammed into the rear of a parked car owned by Louis Drake at 231 1/2 North Court street.

The officer said Grooms told him he had fallen asleep. Both autos were damaged in the crash.

Grooms is to face a reckless operation accusation later in the court of Mayor Thurman I. Miller.

Good Will, Peace Said Aims Of Rotary Clubs

Rotary Clubs in 83 countries throughout the world are united in an endeavor to promote international understanding, good will and peace.

That was the message of James W. Blair of Delaware, governor of District 232 of Rotary International, in addressing the Rotary Club of Circleville Thursday, following a conference with local Rotary officers, directors and committee chairmen.

In addition to the activities of Rotary's 7,100 clubs in their own communities to promote this objective, Blair explained, over a three-year period Rotary International is spending $750,000, principally to create better understanding among the peoples of different nations.

One of the principal ways in which this money is being spent is on Rotary Foundation fellowships which enable outstanding graduate students to study for one year, in countries other than their own, as ambassadors of good will. Since this program was established in 1947, 195 Fellowships have been awarded to students in 35 countries, with grants totaling nearly $500,000.

"Devoted to service, Rotary provides a common ground for 342,000 business and professional executives throughout the world, regardless of nationalities or political or religious beliefs," the Rotary district governor emphasized.

Deputy Sheriff Walter Richards fell heir to a crumpled rear bumper earlier this week when another auto smashed into the rear of his county prowl car.

The deputy, reporting reluctantly, said he had stopped for the traffic light when an auto directly behind him crashed into the prowl car, damaging the bumper. The deputy added, "I took him to a garage and he paid the estimate in a hurry."

Queen Report Is Incorrect

It was incorrectly reported in Thursday's issue of The Circleville Herald that Patty Lynch will represent Deercreek Township school in the 1950 Miss Pumpkin Show beauty contest.

Actually, Miss Lynch will represent Clearcreek school in Stoutsville during the contest.

Puff Of Wind Blamed For Plunge In Ditch

Thursday's high winds were blamed for causing at least one accident in Pickaway County.

Deputy Sheriff Walter Richards said a tractor-trailer outfit operated by James Boone, 28, of Dugger, Ind., left Route 22 and plunged into a field because of the wind.

The trucker told the deputy that he had looked down from the road to check his oil gauge and that a "big puff of wind" carried him from the road.

Richards said the furniture-laden outfit plunged into the ditch to the right of the highway, snapped a telephone pole, plunged through a farm fence and overturned onto its right side.

None of the furniture was spilled, the deputy said, and the driver was unhurt.

Soviet Veto Of Lie Brings UN Confusion

Mudaliar of India, Lester B. Pearson of Canada, Padilla Nervo of Mexico and possibly Gunnar Myrdal of Sweden. All kept silent pending developments in the face of the hottest political race likely to spring up on the international scene in recent years.

Many delegates refused to be surprised by the Lie veto, pointing out that the Cominform has blasted Lie since he joined wholeheartedly in the UN intervention against the North Korean Communists in Korea. In current assembly debates, he was frequently attacked by Soviet bloc delegates as "an agent of the American State Department."

Answers Given On Loan Plan

Housing Credit Details Given

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13—Here are some questions and answers on the new federal housing credit controls:

Q. Why is housing credit being restricted?

A. To reduce the current serious inflationary pressure in housing and cut back home building in 1951 to a level which can be met with the materials and labor available after defense requirements are filled. A reduction from more than one million homes this year to about 800,000 in 1951 is anticipated.

Q. What do the regulations control?

A. The amount of money that may be borrowed to finance new construction of residential real estate.

Q. What is actually covered?

A. Loans for more than $2,500 with more than 18 months maturity on all one and two family unit housing—except for: (a) loans on which written commitments were made before the effective date of the regulation, (b) conventional loans on housing construction started before noon of Aug. 3, 1950, and (c) certain hardship and special exemptions.

Q. When are the regulations effective?

A. Oct. 12, 1950.

Q. Who must comply?

A. LENDERS ARE required to comply with the down payment, maturity, and other provisions of the regulations with penalties provided for violation.

Q. What types of restrictions are used?

A. The principle restriction is for a minimum cash down payment based on the selling price of the property. The cash down payment may not be borrowed from any source, except for loans against equities in life insurance policies.

The regulation also limits the maximum maturity of loans covered, and calls for certain minimum amortization requirements.

Q. What are the down payments?

A. For veterans, down payments range from five to 45 percent of the cost of the house on a sliding scale. For other borrowers, including FHA and conventional loans, terms range from 10 to 50 percent. Maturities

Pumpkin Show Amateur, Baton Contests Backed By Boosters

Circleville Booster Club will sponsor two contests in this year's Pumpkin Show.

The club will sponsor the baton twirling contest scheduled for 8 p. m. Saturday of Pumpkin Show week. It will be held on the platform at the corner of Main and Scioto streets.

Any high school pupil in Pickaway County over 14 years old may enter the contest.

Entrants should apply to Mrs. James Callihan, Circleville Box

12. Deadline for entering is next Wednesday.

Mrs. Callihan said a trophy and $10 cash prize will be awarded to the first place winner, $5 for second place and $2.50 for third.

The Booster Club is also sponsoring the amateur contest to be held at 9:30 p. m. Wednesday.

The contest, to be held at the corner of Court and Main streets, will be open to any Pickaway County school pupil. Deadline for entering is next Monday.

The amateur contest will have two divisions, a junior division for youngsters under 10 years old and a senior division for older children.

Prizes will be the same in both divisions, with $10 being awarded for first place, $5 for second and $2.50 for third.

Mrs. Callihan said entrants will be required to furnish their own accompanists.

The commission which will present its recommendations to the White House Midcentury Conference on Children and Youth in December, also proposed that psychiatric and psychological services be added to the medical facilities provided for unmarried mothers and children to be placed for adoption.

These recommendations were contained in the third list of proposals which will amount to almost 200 in completed form. Others were:

1. That public and private agencies providing foster care and placing children for adoption be helped to get better qualified personnel through improved civil service requirements, higher salaries and a licensing procedure for social workers.

2. That an adopted child should have the same legal status as the natural child as far as adoptive parents are concerned and no longer be considered a child of its natural parents.

3. That part of the law requiring notification of the spouse of the natural parent of the child born out of wedlock be deleted.

Jamming 'Voice' To Be Tough Job Before Long

COLUMBUS, Oct. 13 — Jamming the "Voice Of America" broadcasting stations by the Soviet will be virtually impossible in 1951.

Foy D. Kohler, State Department official in charge of the "Voice," said here yesterday that by next year the Soviet Union will be "ringed" with radio bases, making effective jamming almost impossible.

Kohler, addressing the members of the Central Ohio Foreign Policy Association, said the

"most colossal jamming network ever devised" is failing to keep the Voice from the Russian people.

He estimated that 30 percent of Russian radio listeners regularly tune in on the Voice which operates 24 hours a day, piercing the Iron Curtain with 70 programs in 25 languages.

The 41-year-old Ohio State university graduate urged his listeners to take a "long-range view . . . to face Russia armed and united . . . but with cool determination, not war hysteria."

He denied that either the State Department or the Voice were "operating on the assumption that another general war is inevitable."

By BILLY ROSE

Every now and so frequently someone writes in to complain that he can't understand some of the rag-tag words and clip-clop phrases I use in this column.

To remedy this semantic difficulty I've compiled a list of words and expressions current in the back alleys of Times Square, and without trying to put too fine a glossary on it, here it is, complete with definitions:

Sensational — fair-to-middlin'.
Colossal — average size.
Traffic — great; as in, "a traffic pitcha."
Sturgeon — man who takes out your appendix.
Scalpel — ticket broker.
Carp — a policeman.

Berger Chiefs See $250,000 Building Fund

A fund of more than $250,000 will be available to extend Berger hospital facilities by October, 1953.

According to the hospital board of governors, the first installment of a tax levy for the extension is now available. The tax levy was voted last year.

The board authorized investment of the sum until needed. The authorization was voted during a meeting of the board Wednesday night.

The board of governors also approved use of a new, comprehensive monthly report, compiled by Board Members Harry Heffner and James Shea.

The new report will give comparative figures and other information to form a complete picture of both the operation of the hospital and its financial status.

The board said it will also serve as a guide in determining what additional facilities are most needed to be built out of the tax levy funds.

Rent Control Revival Seen

CLEVELAND, Oct. 13 — Federal Housing Expediter Tighe Woods expects to ask Congress at the coming lame duck session to extend rent control legislation due to expire this year.

Woods addressed 100 area rent advisers from four states during the first session of a two-day panel discussion here yesterday.

The Washington rent chief said his office would recommend to Congress that the rental authority be empowered to recontrol areas that had been decontrolled, if the national defense requires it.

Localites Plan Attending State Defense Parley

Ohio's civil defense program will roll into action on the grass-roots level—where it counts the most—with a meeting between state defense organization officials and representatives of 28 counties in Columbus on Oct. 30.

Pickaway County commissioners, Sheriff Charles Radcliff and Circleville Mayor Thurman I. Miller have been invited to attend the meeting.

Maj. Gen. Leo M. Kreber, state director of civil defense, said members of his staff would meet in the state office building with mayors, county commissioners and sheriffs from the central and southwestern part of the state.

Kreber said similar meetings will be held in Canton, Nov. 1; Cleveland, Nov. 2; Toledo, Nov. 6, and in Cincinnati, Nov. 8.

Up for discussion will be the development of local organizations, police services and plant protection, fire defense services, health defense programs and radiological defense.

The woman was sentenced to Marysville Women's Reformatory yesterday when she pleaded guilty to a manslaughter charge. Originally, she had been charged with second degree murder in the fatal stabbing.

Elinor Williams' Teen Tips

When a girl invites a boy to a dance given by her class, club or school, who pays?

They both do! But the rules of good manners (etiquette) decide very definitely who pays and what they pay for. The easiest way to remember it is this:

Girl invites Boy. He is her guest, so she buys the tickets for the dance. But Boy is also her escort, so he takes care of the rest of the evening's expenses and arranges for them in advance.

Since Boy is Girl's guest, it's up to her to make plans in advance to exchange dances with other couples, always keeping at least the first, intermission and last dances for her escort. It's correct to exchange several dances with friends and classmates, because dances are meant for mixing and mingling, not for "exclusive" couples who dance only with each other as if nobody else were there. It's not friendly!

The boy usually provides a corsage, transportation to and from the dance and perhaps a snack after the dance. If the boy is coming from out of town to attend the dance, however, the girl who invited him makes arrangements for transportation whether it's the family car or sharing a friend's car.

On the way to the dance, she gives him the tickets to carry in his pocket and present at the door, because men always take charge of tickets, no matter who provides them.

For tips on the correct care of oily skin with blackheads or pimples, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Elinor Williams at this paper.

PEARSON ADDS TO CHARGE AGAINST BREHM

Washington columnist Drew Pearson renewed and expanded his charges against Congressman Walter Brehm in his column yesterday, while another Washington report said the FBI today completed a re-investigation of accusations against Ohio's 11th District Representative.

The FBI, it was learned, made one investigation and sent its report to the Justice Department. It made a re-investigation of further check at the request of the Justice Department and has just concluded that assignment. It was learned.

The FBI never gives anyone a clean bill-of-health or any kind of a bill-of-health but merely reports its findings to the Justice Department, one of its officials pointed out.

Following is the text of Pearson's latest column on the case:

WASHINGTON — Congressman Walter Brehm of Ohio recently called me a liar for exposing his "kickback" manipulations with his office payroll. I suppose it might be appropriate to remind Congressman Brehm that some of his ex-colleagues referred to me in the same language, notably ex-Congressman J. Parnell Thomas of New Jersey and ex-Congressman Andrew May of Kentucky, though they later went to jail.

However, I prefer to answer Congressman Brehm by giving some additional facts in the case and letting the public decide who is really guilty of telling lies.

The total kickbacks Brehm received from Mrs. Clara Soliday, a 75-year-old widow formerly employed in his office for three years, amounted to approximately $7,300.

Here is a month-to-month account of how this money was paid to Brehm from the time she went on his payroll January 10, 1945, until she was summarily discharged January 31, 1948, after having broken her arm.

Mrs. Soliday was paid $232.22 for the first part-month she was employed. Of this she had to kick back $100 to her boss. In the next five months, from February 1 to July 1, 1945, she received $332.72 monthly, of which she returned $150 each month to Brehm.

Her salary went up in July to $359.16 a month (Net after regular income and withholding taxes) and so did her kickbacks. From July to December 31, Mrs. Soliday regularly returned $175 of her monthly earnings to Brehm.

For the first six months of 1946 Mrs. Soliday kicked back $180 a month out of $373.96 net salary. From June 30, 1946, until she lost her job January 31, 1948, her listed salary was $442 a month. However, during all this 19-month period Mrs. Soliday kicked back $240 a month to Brehm.

In other words, during the entire 37 months the lady was employed, she was allowed to keep only half her earnings.

Since a congressman's payroll is financed by the taxpayers, it is a violation of public trust, as well as the law, for him to require kickbacks from office assistants. However, all Brehm ever told Mrs. Soliday was that the money she gave him was needed by the GOP "committee" in Ohio for "campaign" purposes.

Troubles Pile Up
The aged lady's troubles really began to pile up in late 1947. While vacationing with a daughter in Cleveland, Ohio, Mrs. Soliday fell and broke her arm. However, another kickback to Brehm was due and she hastened back to Washington on August 30, 1947, without stopping for medical treatment.

The arm was X-rayed in Washington and found to be broken, but before it could be set Mrs. Soliday went to the office of the House sergeant-at-arms on August 31 to cash her pay check. Then she went to a hospital, where she told a daughter, Mrs. Margaret Hiser, to get $240 from her (Mrs. Soliday's) pocketbook.

She then informed her daughter to put the money in an envelope also in the pocketbook. The envelope, believe it or not, bore Brehm's free mailing frank, plus his return address in Washington.

In other words, Congressman Brehm made sure that his office clerk wouldn't forget her monthly kickback while she was on vacation.

Before Mrs. Soliday left, he gave her an envelope which he had addressed to himself in which to return the money.

"Isn't this a lot of cash to be sending in a letter?" Mrs. Hiser recalls asking her mother.

Up to this point — August 31,

1947 — Mrs. Hiser says that she didn't know about her mother's kickbacks, but learned about the payroll padding for the first time when she put the $240 in the envelope and mailed it to Brehm.

A son, Ray Soliday, an Interstate Commerce Commission official in Washington, personally delivered the last kickback to Brehm after Mrs. Soliday, still ailing from her accident and unable to meet Brehm's efficiency standards, was fired.

Soliday went to Brehm's Capitol Hill office the first week in February, 1948, with the $240 in cash.

However, he urged the congressman to permit his mother to keep the final payment "in view of the circumstances" (her being discharged) and the fact that she had "no visible means of support."

However, Brehm refused, saying that the "committee" (in Ohio) expected the money and that he, Brehm, could not go back on his "arrangement" with the committee.

"I don't care what the committee thinks," retorted Soliday. "My mother is entitled to this money and she should be allowed to keep it."

Finally, Brehm agreed to let Soliday return $100 of the $240 to his mother — a sort of kickback in reverse — but he pocketed the remaining $140 for the "committee."

Ray Soliday didn't see Congressman Brehm again until last July when he was summoned to Brehm's apartment in the Methodist building and informed him that "Drew Pearson is after a story about me."

"If Drew Pearson or any of his employees contact you — don't talk to them," instructed Brehm. The above article appeared as a news story on front page of the Lancaster Eagle-Gazette of Tuesday, October 10, 1950.

11th District Taxpayers Comm. R. E. Lawrence, Chairman Lancaster, Ohio.

Dignified High Court OKs Will Favoring Dog

COLUMBUS, Oct. 13—The Ohio supreme court, in all its august dignity, held solemnly today that bequests left to pet dogs are not subject to state inheritance taxes.

The case involved the estate of the late George P. Seabright of Wayne County, who left $1,000 to his pet, "Trixie," to be expended at the rate of 75 cents a day during the dog's lifetime.

After the dog's death, Seabright's will stated, any residue was to be divided among five other beneficiaries.

The Wayne County courts held that the residue was taxable but that, inasmuch as the law did not specifically cover bequests to animals but only to "persons, partnerships and corporations," the amount spent the dog's upkeep was free of taxes. The high court refused to review.

THE WAY OF WEALTH

THE DAY of great personal fortunes is gone in the United States, which is now a land of small opportunities. Though it is still possible to amass modest wealth from a standing start, especially through exploitation of natural resources, it is impossible to pass it on from generation to generation because of estate and other taxes.

Trustees of the estate of the late L. W. Wentz, Oklahoma oil man and capitalist, have just sent the federal government a check for $2,500,000 covering the estate tax on the Wentz holdings. The amount was made public through consent of the trustees, a provision required by law.

At the same time it was announced the Ponca City capitalist during his lifetime paid many times that amount in individual income taxes. It is also known that he gave millions to charity and to various causes. The same is true of the late Frank Phillips, who rose from barber to Oklahoma oil millionaire, whose estate is now in the hands of trustees, and which will eventually pay millions into the federal Treasury.

Almost without exception the modern rich man makes money the servant of society. Great research foundations have been established, libraries established, universities and colleges endowed. The wealthy must find their enjoyment in accumulation. Under modern tax schemes riches are not theirs to have and to hold.

IT CANNOT BE DONE

SOME Americans have developed a habit of trying to anticipate all the ills of the future and avoiding them through government action. Now it is proposed that all Americans, or nearly all of them, be made secure from an atomic bomb attack, if one is unleashed on the United States.

Proposals are made to provide underground shelters wherever atom bombs are likely to fall. This would cost several billion dollars in New York City alone, with Uncle Sam expected to put up the money. One deep thinker advocates an ambitious project of finding the blood type of every citizen while a shot of anti-tetanus is being administered to him.

With blood type known, the populace could be given treatment quickly following an atomic attack. The shot would reduce danger of infection after burns. Aside from the fact facilities for such mass preventive measures could not be provided in five years, the cost would be incalculable.

It undoubtedly would be just ducky if everyone's problems could be solved for him by the government. But this is impossible, try as the do-gooders may. If it were possible, there wouldn't be enough of that initiative which has made this nation great left to wad a shotgun. Except, perhaps, among the politicians who everlastingly keep at the task of inventing new ways to "help" the people.

George E. Sokolsky's
These Days

Mme. Sun Yat-sen was educated in the United States. She speaks and reads English. She has a broad knowledge of conditions in this country. She used to have many American friends, particularly in Macon, Ga., where she lived as a girl. In the years that I knew her well, she might have been called pro-American.

True, after Dr. Sun died in 1925, Mme. Sun became devoted to what she believed to be his intentions, the cementing of friendship between China and Russia, but she knew that Sun fought for an independent China, not for its enslavement to any foreign nation.

It is impossible to believe that Mme. Sun would of her own free will write:

"As we have contact with these two sides (Russian and American), through their foreign policies, we quickly see that they are as different as day is from night. One has all the brightness of day and all the warmth of the sun. That is the Socialist Soviet Union. The other is as forbidding as a wintry night with all its coldness. This is the imperialist band led by the United States."

This paragraph appeared in "Soviet Russia Today," a publication appearing in the United States, devoted to the cause of Russia's advancement. Further she says:

"It has become clear once again that America's capitalistic system is a Humpty-Dumpty which has fallen off the wall of history. It is cracked, and severely so. Therefore, the monopolists of Wall Street try to put it together again. They use the very expensive Marshall Plan, while the American people, and all peoples upon whom it is imposed, are made to pay for it. But even this astronomical expenditure is not enough to mend the broken egg, the situation gets urgent, and degenerates to the frantic stage. Measures of fear are then applied."

Then she concludes:

"The Chinese People's Republic leans to one side. We appreciate the principle of working with friends. We especially admire friends who have such a constructive way of living and know tolerance in their treatment of other people. We think that all such friends should correlate their efforts to construct a new society, to defend world peace so that society can prosper. Consequently, China will continue to follow the policy of leaning to one side, to work with all those who earnestly strive for honest cooperation. And in this period of history, China is pointing the way for the whole Far East."

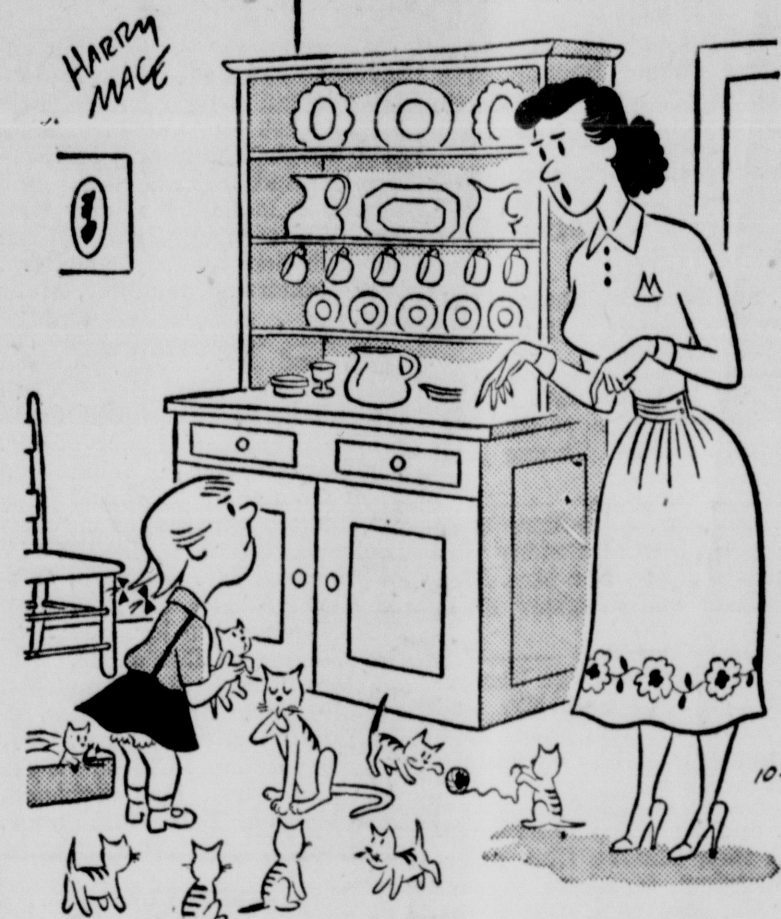

So far, the United States has produced no effective counter-propaganda among the peoples of Asia, except the military power and genius of General Douglas MacArthur. We are proving by military force that we have the means to fight Soviet satellites, perhaps even Soviet Russia. But we have not stated our case; we have not established that hope lies with us. The "Voice of America" speaks, but it does not penetrate the minds and hearts of these peoples. Otherwise, India would not have made so many errors in policy.

There is considerable agitation in Washington for price control. The OPA may be lurking just around the corner, having taken over the spot so long occupied by Prosperity.

Complaint that philanthropy is fading out in the world is unfounded. Look at benevolent old Uncle Sam.

Ailment That May Be Serious

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

AMONG common ailments, sore throat gives place to none in the frequency with which it attacks people of all ages. In this sense it is truly an illness which plagues mankind from the cradle to the grave.

Most people think of sore throat as a fairly minor discomfort when, as a matter of fact, it is always a source of possible danger in that it may lead to permanent damage to the heart, kidneys, or other vital structures, since germs from the throat are often carried by the blood to these organs and there entrench themselves.

Caused by Germs

In most cases, sore throat is caused by germs belonging to one of two great families—the streptococci or the staphylococci. Occasionally, however, diphtheria germs are responsible.

Hence, it is important, particularly in children, to make a culture from the throat to determine whether or not diphtheria germs are present. Of course, all children, before they are one year old, should be given injections of diphtheria toxoid to prevent this disease.

Another cause of sore throat is Vincent's angina or trench mouth. This condition can also be diagnosed by making a throat culture.

White Cells

Sore throat may occur in a condition known as infectious mononucleosis. In this disorder, there is first a decrease in the number of white cells, followed by an increase in the type of white cells known as lymphocytes.

Still another cause of sore throat is herpes of the tonsils. Herpes are like fever blisters and they may occur on the tonsils. It is likely that they are due to an infection caused by a virus. The throat also may be affected by yeast-like organisms, including one known as thrush.

Sore throat may be one of the symptoms in a group of more serious disorders. For example, there is a condition known as agranulocytic angina, which results from a reaction to certain drugs. Here there is a decrease in the number of white cells in the blood, a feeling of tiredness, and enlargement of the lymph glands.

Prompt diagnosis is important so that the offending drug may be avoided and proper treatment given without delay.

Early Symptoms

In leukemia, in which there is an increase in the number of white cells in the blood and enlargement of the lymph glands, sore throat is often an early symptom.

Sore throat occurs in colds, influenza, and measles.

Since this condition can be produced by so many causes, and because of the dangers of a neglected sore throat, prompt attention by the doctor is important when sore throat is present. He will determine its cause and suggest proper treatment. In most of the ordinary cases, the use of one of the antibiotic drugs, such as penicillin or aureomycin will clear up the disorder rapidly.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

R. H.: What causes cracking in the jaw?

Answer: Cracking in the jaw is, in most cases, due to a slight inflammation in the joint on which the lower jaw moves.

Sometimes, a small piece of fibrous tissue may break off and get into the jaw, which causes the cracking sound. This piece of tissue will gradually be absorbed.

CHAPTER THIRTY-ONE

SALLY WAS watching her shrewdly and Perry had an uneasy feeling that Sally could read her mind. Sally grinned and scrubbed out her cigarette, and looked at Perry beneath her lids.

"Sat you back on your heels, didn't I?" she drawled coolly. "You'll soon learn there's no such thing as a secret here, pal—and Miss Mehitty's connection with Sanna is no secret and never was. Miss Mehitty is held in awe and frightened esteem by all the mountain people. It's been known for a long time that Sanna was consorting with old Mehiti, and people have been very worried about what the results might be—for Phil."

"If Sanna likes having her fortune told—" Perry began a trifle wildly, but the look on Sally's face dried the words on her lips.

"Phooey on fortunes!" said Sally. "Sanna herself does a pretty nifty job of 'runnin' the cards' and 'reading the tea-leaves'—surprised you haven't found that out. Oh, no, Sanna never went to old Mehiti to get her fortune told. She went to her 'yarb-medicine' to feed to Phil."

Perry gasped, and her face went white.

"Sally, what an awful thing to say!" she gasped.

"Ain't it?" Sally agreed heartily. "It's an even worse thing to do—and now look what happens. After Phil has been given up by all the doctors, and by visiting specialists brought here at an enormous expense, and everybody has agreed he was hopelessly crippled, Sanna stuffs him full of old Mehiti's 'Magic Elixir'—and presto! Phil walks again!"

Perry could only stare at her, wide-eyed and shaken.

"See what it's going to mean to all of us at the hospital and in the nursing service?" Sally pointed out. "People who have believed in old Mehiti, who have insisted on pouring out the medicine we prescribe for them, are going to rise up in such numbers that we are going to have to start all over again educating them; we haven't been as successful as I'd like to pretend, if it comes to that. But we have managed to wean a few of them away from her miserable 'yarb-potions.' The ones we get in the hospital, mostly; their families sometimes reluctantly agree that we can do more for them than Miss Mehitty. But, oh, good grief, Perry. Can you imagine what's going to happen now?"

Sally was so deeply troubled that she was near tears.

"Sally, you don't believe Miss Mehitty had anything to do with Phil's improvement?" demanded Perry hotly.

Sally's eyes met hers and fell away, and there was a tinge of shame in Sally's cheeks, even as she said, "Don't be a fool—of course not."

Perry studied her shrewdly, and suddenly she said quietly, "But after all, queer things do happen that not even the finest doctors and scientists can explain. Is that the way you feel about it, Sally?"

"Of course not," Sally protested indignantly. "It's just that—well, sometimes when we at the hospital have worked our hearts and heads out over some poor devil, and have had to give up, old Mehiti's come to bat. Gosh!"

She ran her hands through her tumbled curls and lit another cigarette with hands that shook a little.

"So now Phil's going to get well," she said very slowly, and drew a deep breath. "Well, hang it all, if he's going to get well, who the heck cares who gets the credit?"

"Atta girl, Sally," said Perry gaily.

Sally studied her for a moment, and then she said quietly, "How's Jay taking all this?"

Perry tensed but made herself say crisply, "How would you expect? Philip is his dearly loved friend, and so he's naturally tickled to death."

"Oh, sure—I didn't mean that," said Sally. "What I meant was—well, all of us at the hospital were practically fit to be tied when we found Jay was getting the old heave-ho and Dr. Litton was taking over. Oh, sure, Litton's swell. We're all crazy about him. But Jay's really our boy! And we felt—and still feel—he's getting the dirty end of the stick. And kindly don't try to tell me that Jay wasn't hurt and insulted and humiliated at being kicked out, after all he's done for Philip, and that—that—"

"I'd rather not discuss it, Sally, if you don't mind," said Perry icily.

Sally stared at her. Suddenly she stubbed out her neglected cigarette and stood up.

"Do I smell something burning?" she asked sweetly. "Or it could be that torch you're carrying for Jay, couldn't it?"

Perry's eyes blazed and she stood up.

"I think that will be quite enough, Sally," she said crisply. "Oh, don't ruffle your feathers, Perry, pal," begged Sally, unexpectedly gentle and coaxing. "I'm tickled silly to find it's Jay, and not my Steve."

Perry gasped, and felt as though

FOLKS OF FAME—GUESS THE NAME

1—Born in London, England, May 23, 1799, this humorist and poet, earned his first money by revising a new edition of a well-known book. His Odes and Addresses was published in 1825. His serious verse did not bring him fame, but his series of the Comic Annual did. The Dream of Eugene Aram first showed his full poetic power. The Song of the Shirt, Bridge of Sighs, Song of the Laborer were other poems which depicted the appalling conditions of the industrial worker of his day. Faithless Nelly Gray, Faithless Sally Brown, I'm Not a Simple Man, etc., are in humorous vein. Ode to Autumn, The Water Lady, Flowers, show his love of nature and fanciful side. He died May 3, 1845. His name, please?

2—This French revolutionary leader was born in Arras May 6, 1758. In 1789 he was elected as one of the deputies to the States General, attaching himself to the extreme left wing. As his influence grew, he was appointed public accuser. King Louis XVI fled the throne and the Reign of Terror began. He was elected first deputy for the Paris National convention and joined with others in urging the king's execution. Elected to the first Committee of Public Safety, he became the actual ruler of France. In the drama of the Revolution, dark intrigue and desperate struggles of opposing parties he sent Georges Jacques Danton and other leaders to the guillotine, and he reigned supreme. His power, however, waned, and he was arrested, wounded, and next day (July 28, 1794), he and 20 others were sent to the guillotine. This was the end of the Terror. Who was he?

Military Air Transport Command Does Fine Job

Hundreds of Specialists Flown to Korean Front

Special to Central Press

WASHINGTON—Now that the crisis apparently has passed, it can be disclosed that for a while it was touch-and-go whether key military personnel would get to Korea in time to fill serious gaps. The outbreak of war in Korea caught the United States Far Eastern forces lacking hundreds of skilled men in such fields as radar, fire control and communications.

Surface transportation was out of the question so the Military Air Transport Command (MATC) was called upon.

MATC responded in rousing fashion. Planes were speeded from European duties and hundreds of specialists were flown to the battlefield.

In the first weeks of the war, MATC enlisted the support of the commercial airlines, but now that the situation is in hand the civil planes and pilots are being returned to the airlines.

ATOMIC BOMBING—Advocates of atomic bombing of Korea have another thought coming if they believe that's a speedy way to end the war. The House armed services committee was told recently that the A-bomb is not the "ultimate" weapon it's cracked up to be. Most of the damage collapsing buildings and flying debris.

Out in the open, such as in Korea, damage and casualties would be much less than in Japan, according to the experts' testimony to the armed services committee.

Washington

These experts claim that the A-bomb actually would not be a militarily practical weapon in the present conflict because of its cost as compared with the damage it would inflict.

WORK PLANS—Industry is alarmed over a Labor department sponsored measure now pending in the Senate which it contends would lead to enforcement of government "work plans" in every business.

The bill, introduced by Chairman Elbert D. Thomas (D), Utah, of the Senate labor committee, would give the secretary of labor authority to conduct studies to determine how the industrial work force can be used most effectively.

Industry spokesmen charge the bill would permit a Labor department official to enter any plant, disapprove its existing work plan and lay down a government-drafted plan which the plant should follow.

Opponents of the measure admit that, as presently prepared, the legislation would not be compulsory. But they insist that unions would bring pressure for acceptance of such government plans and public opinion would be whipped up to support them.

ACHESON SUBS—For a fleeting moment on Sept. 11 the State department had an "acting" secretary of state whose name would not have registered with the average citizen.

Secretary Dean Acheson left for New York to attend the Big Three foreign ministers' meeting. In his absence, Undersecretary James Webb normally would have become "acting" secretary of state.

However, as Acheson prepared to leave, Webb had not returned from international financial conferences he attended in Paris. Next in line in the State department command was H. Freeman Matthews.

Department officials explained that Matthews, deputy undersecretary but a stranger to the general public, would serve as acting secretary in the absence of both Acheson and Webb.

However, Matthews held his "acting" office for only a few minutes. Webb arrived at National airport just as Acheson prepared to leave and hurried to the State department to become acting secretary.

who were "victims of aggression" were not supposed to be aggressed back to and beyond the 38th Parallel.

Stalin is still wishing them well as far as the 39th Parallel. After that they may be on their own.

But Stalin did not leave Moscow to say "Hello" whereas Mr. Truman carries his own mail.

Harry did not ask the UN whether it as all right to visit the commander of the UN forces. He figures his term would be up before his request could get on the agenda.

It's doubtful whether Vishinsky will accept any of our new peace plans. He's got so many of our old ones he hasn't opened yet.

But Stassen thinks if he could sit down with Stalin he would get answers to some questions and it's worth trying. At least he couldn't give anything away.

That would be a change.

Bennett Cerf's
Try, Stop Me

The ingenuity of the American business man cannot be exaggerated. One young man, for instance, approached Bernard Baruch with the idea of opening a brokerage office in the Empire State Building, with part of the office in the lobby and the other part on the 100th floor. He explained: "With this set-up, a customer can put in an order to buy a stock in the lobby, then take the elevator and sell on the 100th floor. This will assure him of getting in at the bottom and selling out near the top."

Another bright young man suggested a new sales service that would equip all private cars in Scotland with taxicab meters, thereby enabling the owners to watch the meters mount up and enjoy the thought of how much money they are continuously saving.

I don't say these ideas have been adopted; I merely claim they are ingenious.

If you have a friend who might be improved by a touch of humility, try quoting to him this Chinese proverb: "The sea, by lying low, receives all the waters of the world."

Some "flappers" of the post-World War I period had permanent "rouge" tattooed on lips and cheeks.

Business Women's Club Is Given Background On 'Crusade For Freedom'

Jaycee Member
Is Speaker

Cirleville Business and Professional Women's Club members signed the "scroll" of the Crusade for Freedom Thursday night at a dinner in Pickaway Arms given in observance of National Business Women's Week to be held Oct. 15 through 21.

Charles Richards, representing Cirleville Junior Chamber of Commerce and guest speaker, reminded club members that only ten years ago Great Britain faced danger and disaster of the Nazi blitz with a spirit of cooperation. He said:

"Crusade for Freedom" is our chance to unite for a common cause. Communism would stamp out all freedom. 'Crusade for Freedom' is a dynamic campaign to show where we, as Americans, stand.

"We are confident of our own strength. But how about the people abroad? We must show them we are working with them to halt Communism."

Richards explained that Russia's "big lie" propaganda must be combated by dramatically demonstrating our "big truth—freedom and peace for all." He said:

"A 20-ton bell of bronze has been cast in Croyden, England. It is a freedom bell. It is a modern liberty bell which American people are giving to the world."

"On United Nations Day Oct. 24, the bell will be installed and dedicated in the American zone of Berlin. In the base of the bell tower there will be enshrined for all time Freedom Scrolls bearing the signatures of millions of American citizens."

At the business session conducted by Mrs. Cliff Beaver, president, plans were made to combine National Business Women's Week and Pumpkin Show activities.

Miss Elizabeth Hilyard reported that the prize winning BPW float of Jackson festival would be available for Pumpkin Show parades. The float will be for display only and not compete with local floats.

Plans were completed to attend church service Sunday as a group.

It was decided to meet for coffee in Franklin Inn at 9:45 a. m. Sunday and go in a group to First Methodist church service.

Pumpkin Pie
Be Televised

Negotiations to have the final judging of the pumpkin pie baking contest at this year's Pumpkin Show televised are underway with two TV stations.

Last year, the judging was televised on film as was the presenting of the grand prize by Governor Lausche.

Representatives of General Mills Inc. said dickering for the show is underway now. If technical difficulties prove too much of a problem, the contest again will be filmed and played back over a TV network later.

The grand prize in this contest will be a Westinghouse television set. The set, secured through the cooperation of Harpster and Yost, is on display in their window.

Contestants for this grand prize will come from the victors of the final judging of the two daily Pumpkin Pie baking contests.

One of the contests, sponsored by General Mills, will award daily prizes of Betty Crocker Tru Heat irons, General Mills automatic toasters, and the new Betty Crocker picture cookbooks. Contestants will be required to use either Mozart or Country Colonel pumpkin and Betty Crocker Crustquick, in the manufacture of the pie. Each pie entered must be accompanied by a label from a can of either of the pumpkin and a box top from a package of Crustquick.

The second contest, sponsored by Pumpkin Show Inc., places no restrictions on the ingredients used. Daily prizes will be offered amounting to $40 for the four days.

Eighteen independent grocers are cooperating with the General Mills contest. From Circleville are Funks, Charles A. Smith, Palm's, Black's, Ward's, Glitt's Ice Cream, North End, Held's, Mumaw's, Messick's, Walters', Glitt's Grocery, Collin's, Anderson's and Wolf's. In Williamsport there is the Horch store and in both Ashville and South Bloomfield, the Clarence Cloud markets.

HOW TO USE THE BIBLE

READING SCRIPTURE: "MAKES THREE WISE UNTO SALVATION," SAID ST. PAUL

Scripture—Psalms 19:7-11; Acts 8:26-39; II Timothy 3:14-17.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL
THE BIBLE is still the world's "best seller," despite the immense output, through the ages, of secular writers. Millions of copies are printed and distributed over the globe every year.

How many read the Scriptures? That cannot be answered with any certainty. How many read it with understanding? That too is problematical. Our lesson tells us of one who read, earnestly, but not understanding what he read, was told by a messenger from God and became the first Gentile convert to Christianity.

The psalmist knew the value of Scripture reading. He says: "The law of Jehovah is perfect, restoring the soul: The testimony of Jehovah is sure, making wise the simple."

The "simple" does not mean the stupid, but those who have a childlike trust and are willing to learn.

"The precepts of Jehovah are right, rejoicing the heart: The commandment of Jehovah is pure, enlightening the eyes."

"The fear of Jehovah is clean, enduring forever: The ordinances of Jehovah are true, and righteous altogether."

"More to be desired are they than gold, yea, than much fine gold: Sweeter also than honey and the droppings of the honeycomb."

"Moreover by them is Thy servant warned: In keeping them there is great reward."

Gold—even "much fine gold"—does not make men happy. How many rich men have found that out. If they gain all the things money can buy, they may still be lonely, misunderstood and unhappy.

Now we come to the story of the first Gentile converted to Christianity. The Apostle Philip—one of the seven appointed to administer some secular business in the Jerusalem church—was called by an angel of God to go to the road that ran from Jerusalem to Gaza.

He hurried to do the bidding, and saw a very important Ethiopian who was treasurer to Candace, queen of Ethiopia. He was riding in his chariot from Jerusalem where he had been for worship, and as he rode he read in the book of Isaiah. The Spirit directing Philip told him to go near and join this man. Philip did so, asking the Ethiopian if he understood what he was reading:

"He was led as a sheep to the slaughter; And as a lamb before his shearer is dumb, so He opened not His mouth: In His humiliation His judgment was taken away: His generation who shall declare? For His life is taken from the earth."

Who was the prophet speaking of? asked the eunuch. Of Jesus, answered Philip. And he proceeded to tell of Jesus and His teaching; how He was killed by unbelievers and buried, then rose from the dead.

As they proceeded on their way, the Ethiopian said, "See here is water; what doth hinder me to be baptized?"

"If thou believest with all thine heart, thou mayest," said Philip. The man said he believed that "Jesus Christ is the Son of God."

Both men went into the water and this unnamed man was baptized.

St. Paul, writing to his "beloved son," Timothy, sums up the benefits of reading the Bible. "But continue thou in the things which thou hast learned and hast been assured of, knowing of whom thou hast learned them; And that from a child thou hast known the Holy Scriptures, which are able to make thee wise unto salvation through faith which is in Christ Jesus."

"All Scripture is given by inspiration of God, and is profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteousness."

"That the man of God may be perfect, thoroughly furnished unto all good works."

We may not grow perfect by studying the Scriptures—that is not possible for human beings. But we can be greatly helped to that end if we study the Scriptures, understand them, and try earnestly to live as Jesus would have us.

A-War Peril Class Ordered

CLEVELAND, Oct. 13—Plans for studies which eventually will lead to classroom instruction on atomic war perils have been set in motion by Lakewood board of education.

The board, in a resolution recognizing that the threat of atomic attack "will be with us for many years," the board voted last night to carry through a proposed program of atom bomb defense activity prepared by Martin W. Essex, superintendent of schools.

Quaint Old City Holding Its Nose

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13—Quaint old Georgetown, Washington's residential section that provides its antiquity, stinks.

But 80 Georgetown residents who protested the stink agreed to hold their breaths for a little while more when they learned that the admitted source of the stink, a rendering plant, has spent $20,000 in an effort to unsmell itself. The work should be done by April 1, and the residents agreed to wait until then before taking further action.

Biffle Certain Dems To Beat Senator Taft

MIAMI, Oct. 13—Senate Secretary Leslie Biffle has predicted that the Democratic Party will retain control of the House of Representatives and "increase its majority" in the Senate in the November elections. He also forecast a Democratic victory over Republican Senator Robert Taft in Ohio.

Biffle, a close friend of President Truman, is in Miami to attend a conference launching the city's proposed Inter-American Cultural and Trade Center—a multi-million-dollar project aimed at bettering hemispheric trade and friendship.

In an interview, he said:

"Without any ifs, ands, or hesitations, we will beat Taft in Ohio, we'll beat Capehart in Indiana, we'll beat Millikin in Colorado."

Lush Saloon Boss Says
Yankees Drink Lighter

NEW YORK, Oct. 13—Civilization may be thrown for a loss from time to time, but by and large it continues to stagger onward and upward, bearing aloft that strange device "excelsior."

This is the conclusion of Billy Riorden, international bon vivant and host at the newly reopened Rockefeller Saloon and Rainbow Room, 65 stories up amid the clouds of Rockefeller Centre.

Riorden has the theory that civilization is still on the upgrade. He points with pride to the disappearance of the Bronx cocktail and the Pousse Cafe as proof positive that man is not only getting better but soberer.

"You won't believe it, but in my salad days, a man about town not only drank Bronx cocktails, a corrodng mixture of orange juice and gin, but," said Riorden, shuddering convulsively, "when he was able to drink a Pousse Cafe layer by layer, he was a Scott Fitzgerald character cum laude."

"You cannot tell me that a nation that prefers the Old-Fashioned to the Bronx cocktail and an honest Martini to a Pousse Cafe is not marked by destiny for great things," he said as he surveyed his new-kingdom, the resurrected Rainbow Room.

THE OLD-FASHIONED is definitely America's favorite cocktail, he opined, with the Martini in second place. Furthermore, despite much calumny on the part of visitors from abroad, American's don't lap up liquor faster than any other nationality, in the experience of Riorden. Americans still prefer whisky to wines.

Word Warfare
Setup Planned
By U.S. Army

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13 — The Army has announced formation of a new psychological warfare division that may use guided missiles to broadcast messages and drop leaflets to enemy populations.

Brig. Gen. Robert A. McClure, head of the division, said it is possible to build a guided missile that will "rotate around a target, dropping leaflets from one end while broadcasting a message to the population from the other."

The new division is being formed within the Army's administration section, but McClure said that in a matter of weeks it will assume a place as a separate operating division of the Army.

McClure said his division will have leaflet and loud speaker units for operation at the front, psychological warfare groups to broadcast from mobile and fixed radio stations in rear areas, officers to advise fighting units, and intelligence and evaluation groups assigned to all major headquarters.

In illustrating the difference between his division and the Army intelligence section, McClure cited the example of the capture of a Communist lieutenant-colonel in Korea recently.

He said intelligence was interested in the technical information the officer gave, while his division was interested in why the officer joined the Communist Party, what he thought he would get out of it, whether any promises had been realized, what the soldiers and people were thinking and similar information.

Pearson's Story Against Congressman Brehm Is Not Supported By The Evidence
FBI Has Twice Investigated These Rumors

Fellow Americans:

I am not going to bore you with a lot of details. When Drew Pearson first came out with his unwarranted attack against me I publicly branded it as a malicious lie based on a report which my opposition had given him to put out.

Those of you who recall the 1944 election will remember that another smear attack was made against my character by the same unscrupulous outfit who is now opposing me.

The charges at that time were proved to be without foundation and the one which they brought out this time is more malicious and baseless than their 1944 charges, if that is possible.

You may also recall that the honest, Christian voters rose up in protest against such tactics.

In order to try and conceal their identity and still put out their lies and insinuations, they first forged the name of A. L. Rowe to a malicious ad during the May Primary. Investigation showed that A. L. Rowe worked for Roscoe Underwood in Perry County.

In a further effort to give the impression that they were not engaging in their 1944 tactics Drew Pearson was chosen to fire the opening gun. In this way they could then reprint Pearson's articles and hope that no one would ever suspect the part they had in originating the attack.

In 1944 the articles against me were signed J. E. Moore, Sec'y Underwood for Congress Committee, New Lexington, Ohio. Now in 1950 they are signed J. E. Moore, Sec'y 11th District Tax Payers Committee.

When I first learned that the Dept. of Justice had received a letter from a "Democratic Politician" containing weird and unfounded accusations, I not only insisted that the statements in the letter be investigated but also that they extend the investigation to include everyone who had ever been connected with my office. This investigation was completed on August 25, 1950, as shown in letter above at right.

This investigation showed that the evidence obtained did not support the charges contained in the "politicians" letter.

About four weeks after the FBI had submitted their report and felt that it was a "closed book" Mr. Pearson came out with the same story and the Justice Department requested the FBI to make further inquiry into the same subject.

Now the second investigation has been completed and still no evidence is found to back up or substantiate the lie which caused the investigation to be made in the first place.

Now let's summarize:

In an effort to take me out of Congress my opposition cooked up one of the most diabolical plans ever conceived to try to accomplish their objective.

Following the Communistic pattern they took a few simple facts and constructed a "Frankenstein Monster" of lies and distortions which would do credit to Stalin.

Then by one means or another they probably got an affidavit as an alibi for their act and turned the entire kit and caboodle over to Drew Pearson.

On Sunday evening, (of all days) September 24, Mr. Pearson spread this lie before the world. A few papers evidently more interested in the sensational than the facts, not only printed this lie word for word as put out by Pearson, but in some instances slanted it further in favor of my opposition.

On top of this hundreds of dollars are now being spent to reprint the Pearson story in the District papers. It is interesting to note that these articles are appearing over the signature of J. E. Moore who in 1944 was Sec'y to my present opponent's Committee for Congress.

The voice of Jacob but the hand of Esau is readily heard and seen.

On two separate occasions the FBI has investigated this entire story and found that the evidence does not support the lies which my opposition has been putting out.

I know my opposition has powerful connections in Washington and I would not be surprised at anything. However, it is time to find out if a group of irresponsible, power hungry, individuals can put out such a tale and get by with it.

It might not be amiss to quote from a letter written by Mrs. Soliday at the very time my opposition says I was "forcing her" to do certain things. This letter is shown at bottom right.

It seems to me that the argument simmers down to this: Either you can accept the report that the FBI found no evidence to support the charge, or you can accept Drew Pearson's sensationalism based on family gossip.

If there were any reliable or documentary evidence to support such charges wouldn't they have shown up during the FBI investigations? Do you still wonder why it is becoming more and more difficult to get honest men and women to run for public office.

Sincerely yours,

Walter E. Brehm, Member of Congress

OFFICE OF THE DIRECTOR

UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE
FEDERAL BUREAU OF INVESTIGATION
WASHINGTON 25, D. C.

September 13, 1950

Honorable Walter E. Brehm
House of Representatives
Washington, D. C.

My dear Congressman:

I wish to acknowledge your communication of September 13, addressed to Mr. Nichols, wherein you inquire regarding the status of the recent investigation which was conducted by the FBI.

In response to your specific inquiry the investigation requested of the FBI was completed under date of August 25, 1950.

Sincerely yours,

Signed/J. Edgar Hoover

May 3, 1947

*Mr. L. H. Soliday
1130 W. Fair Avenue
Lancaster, Ohio

Dear Mr. Soliday:

I am the widow of Dan Soliday, formerly of Logan, Ohio, and I am quite certain that we are related.

For the past three years I have been employed in the office of Congressman Walter E. Brehm and was terribly shocked and hurt to read your letter which came this morning. I asked Dr. Brehm if he intended to reply to it and he said: "No, there is no need of starting an argument with Mr. Soliday."

I then decided I would just drop you a note myself to let you know that Dr. Brehm is not a narrow-minded politician. If he were he would not have employed me in his office, as he has known for years that my politics were not the same as his.

I know from experience that Dr. Brehm has always fought for the under-dog, and I know that it is because I was a widow that he was kind enough to take me into his office.

It is perfectly all right for you to disagree with him on any subject, but I do hope that this letter will help convince you that he is broadminded and I sincerely trust, for my sake, that any letters which you might write him in the future will deal with the subject under discussion and not be a narrow-minded partisan political letter.

Very truly yours,

Signed/Clara Soliday

CHS FAVORED IN CONTEST

New Boston Standing By To Repel Mass Invasion

New Boston will know Circleville is in town Friday night, so local fans believe.

More than 500 local sports followers, the Circleville high school band and the rampaging CHS Tiger football team will invade the community for the Friday football game.

Charles Walters, president of the Circleville Booster Club said reservations have been made on the "football special" train for 600 persons.

"We had 508 tickets sold as of Thursday," Walters said. "We'll make reservations for 600 in case someone wants to buy tickets at the station."

The "special" is scheduled to leave the Norfolk and Western Railway station at 5:15 p. m. Friday complete with band and rosters.

CIRCLEVILLE'S crackerjack football team, however, will

George May Seeks Corner On Golf Tourneys

CHICAGO, Oct. 13—George S. May seemingly is trying to corner the market on golf tournaments.

The colorful Chicago promoter of the All-American and World Championship Tournaments yesterday offered the Professional Golfers' Association a $25,000 guarantee to bring the 1951 Ryder Cup matches to his Tam O'Shanter Club.

May already has men and women's divisions in both the amateur and professional classes of his All-American and World Championship events. He wants to sandwich the Ryder Cup matches between these tournaments.

His offer to the PGA stipulates that the play between the 10 best American and the 10 best British professionals must be held Aug. 7 and 8. It also specifies that all the Ryder Cup golfers remain in Chicago to play in his $50,000 World Championship tournament.

PGA President Joe Novak said May's offer was the "best" one thus far received but added the organization's executive committee will have to vote on it.

Meanwhile, the British professional golfers' chieftain, Cmdr. R. T. C. Roe, and his group are being sounded out to determine whether they can comply with May's requests.

Tiger Juniors Tally 44-0 Win Over Lion Cubs

Circleville's junior Tiger football team roared into a decisive 44-0 victory Thursday over host Washington C. H. Blue Lion Cubs.

The local juniors posted 13 points in the opening quarter, added six in the second stanza, tallied 13 again in the third period and finished with another 12 points.

Coach Dick West said he dressed only 25 boys for the game and that all of them played.

Featured for Circleville in scoring were Mike Brown, John Wilkes, Tom Graef, Ronnie Bennington and Fred Davis.

Yankee Rally Beats 49ers

BENNINGTON and Davis both tallied twice during the fracas, while the other three scorers netted a single score each.

In the last few seconds of play in the lopsided ball game, Bennington intercepted a Washington pass as the gun boomed and raced unopposed for the score as the host club headed for the locker room. Washington was called back to defend the extra point attempt.

Bennington netted an extra point for the locals with a run while Tom Elsea completed the only other conversion via a quarter-back sneak.

Next test for the Tiger juniors will be held at 4 p. m. Thursday at the home of the Hillsboro Pa. pooses.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 13—The Cincinnati Reds hoped they had another Ewell Blackwell today with the acquisition of Pitcher Jim Blackburn of Tulsa.

The right-handed Texas League hurler won 21 games and lost only seven during the 1950 season. He struck out 132 batters and pitched 37 1-3 scoreless innings during one period of the season. He is 26 years old and his home is in Cincinnati.

Ez Sez Reign To Last As Long As Louis'

NEW YORK, Oct. 13—Ezzard Charles expects to be heavyweight boxing champion "as long as Joe Louis was."

Ezzard said yesterday, when he received the Police Gazette's silver championship belt in New York, that he sees no reason why he can't be the titleholder for a decade or more.

Charles indicated that he will establish a "Bum of the Month Club," just as Louis did. His first title defense is slated for Nov. 30 in Cincinnati, Ezzard's hometown, preferably against Freddie Beshore.

Ezzard kayoed Beshore in the 14th round in Buffalo in August. Post morteming his 15-round decision over Louis two weeks ago, Charles said he discovered early in the fight that the former champion was vulnerable to a right cross.

He added that, while he respected Joe's right, he noticed that Louis hesitated before using it. Ezzard said:

"I suppose his reflexes have grown slow, so I could get out of the way."

Tommy Farr Plans Comeback At Age Of 36

LONDON, Oct. 13—Welshman Tommy Farr, who finds the comeback trail less rocky than did Joe Louis, wants to make Freddie Beshore his next stepping stone toward a heavyweight title fight.

Utter contempt for the present crop of heavyweights enticed the man who once went 15 rounds with Louis out of a decade of retirement at the age of 36.

In his first effort—the same night that Louis was decisioned by Ezzard Charles—Farr kayoed a nondescript Dutchman, Jan Klein, in six rounds.

Farr's reasons for singling out Beshore as his next foe are highly logical. To begin with, Charles, now recognized as champion everywhere but in Britain, already has defeated Beshore once and is trying to arrange another meeting on Nov. 30.

That, as Farr sees it, makes Beshore in direct line of ascent to the throne. Farr's manager, John Harding, already has cabled Beshore an invitation to meet Tommy in an English ring.

Army Set For Hungry Michigan

Cadets Cautious About Coming Tilt

NEW YORK, Oct. 13—Can Michigan Purdue Army?

Army Coach Earl Blaik asked this of himself in a moment of vague suspicion today, 24 hours before his undefeated Black Knights take the field against Michigan in Yankee Stadium.

Blaik's Cadets are comfortable nine-point choices to sashay the Wolverines on the stadium grid tomorrow, but Frank Leahy's Notre Dame eleven was an even fancier choice to dissemble Purdue last week—and Purdue won it, 28 to 14.

Blaik has informed the Army players, therefore, that if they expect an easy time tomorrow afternoon they had better watch the game on television.

"This Michigan team is tough," Blaik said. "It's hungry, and it's saving its best game for us."

Michigan Coach Bennie Oosterbaan has demurred. "My best back," he said, "has a bad ankle. What are we going to do?"

The bad ankle belongs to the triple threat, Chuck Ortman.

BUT HE HAS been working well in practice, and is expected to be in action when needed.

The word is, actually, that Michigan will depend mostly on its defensive strength to shackle the Army ball-carriers. The Wolverine line, headed by Tackle Al Wahl, is a good one, and might be able to flag people like Frank Fischl, Jim Cain and Gil Stephenson, for a while, anyway.

Should Army's running game fall short, Blaik will tell his talented offspring, Bob Blaik, who plays quarterback in lieu of the splendid Arnold Galiffa, to throw a few.

This would bring into play the pass-catching ability of Dan Foldberg, 185-pound end who is considered Army's finest single player.

Thus if Army doesn't win one way, it is ready and able to win another. There seems no logical possibility that Michigan can take this one.

But as long as there are Purdues, guys like Earl Blaik will chew their fingernails far into the night.

40 Ohio Staters Head For Indiana

COLUMBUS, Oct. 13—Forty Ohio State men of football invade Indiana today—Bloomington to be exact—sincere in their ability to hand the Hoosiers their first defeat of the season.

Indiana has tied Nebraska, 20-20, and beat Iowa, 20-7, while the Buckeyes dropped their opener to Southern Methodist, 32-27 and roared back to demolish Pittsburgh, 41-7.

The air was filled with passes in a practice drill yesterday as the Scarlet squad unleashed them, hauled them down and batted them away in a successful attempt to simulate the Indiana passing attack.

County Agent Asks: 'Is Now Good Time To Go In Debt?'

Balancing Conditions Is Urged

Questions Cited For Answering

"Is now a good time to go in debt?" is a question which Larry Best, Pickaway County agricultural agent, says local farmers should ponder carefully.

Best provokes further thought with:

"Most men who have gone ahead financially have at some time taken risks—sometimes large ones. But, is this the time for you to go into debt, to start taking those risks?"

"Everyone knows that during the last 10 years, farming paid higher rates of return than the cost of borrowing. It paid a good farmer to build up his business with borrowed money. But since since early 1948, prices have been going down—the profits in farming have narrowed. So, the question of going into debt is more difficult to answer. And the farmer himself the one person who can answer it."

Best points out that L. J. Norton, of the University of Illinois, has listed five questions every farmer should ask himself before he borrows to expand the size or intensity of his farm business:

1. DO YOU THOROUGHLY understand the business you plan to expand? Don't just jump at a venture because your neighbor is getting rich in it. Try it out on a small scale with your own money or take plenty of time to study all the angles of the new business.
2. Is the probable direction of the nation's price levels favorable to expansion? Because nobody knows which directions prices this year will go, your decision will have to be based on how much you are willing to gamble and your guess whether we are to have peace or war.
3. What is the size of the new debt in relation to your present capital in land, buildings, cash? Remember, you're risking more than only the loss of the money you borrowed. You also risk the loss of cash and capital you already own.
4. What is the burden created by the debt in relation to your probable income? Will the extra income from your expanded business cover the interest on the loan and pay the debt itself?
5. Do you have a well-thought-out and specific plan for using the borrowed money? You'll need one—first to help make your decision; second to help convince the person you're asking for a loan.

PTA Makes Final Plans Here For Pumpkin Show, Bond Issue

Circleville Parent-Teacher Association Thursday evening heard a newly organized group, called the Triple Trio and composed of Jackie Smith, Beverly Reid, Beatrice Bass, Nancy Waple, Joan Kerr, Marjorie Thornton, Eleanor Lewis, Dorothy Lampson and Margaret Ann Green, sing the National PTA Song and led the group in singing America, accompanied by Mrs. George Gerhardt.

Dr. Richard Samuel, PTA president, gave a report of the executive committee meeting in which he stated it had been decided to make a house to house canvass, sponsoring the bond issue for the proposed physical education building.

Mrs. Walter Heine, chairman of the health committee, was allowed $250 to start work on the health program.

Plans are rapidly nearing completion for the Pumpkin Show booth.

Walnut Street school will be in charge of the booth on Wednesday, High Street on Thursday, Franklin Street on Friday and Corwin Street on Saturday.

Membership drive will close Wednesday, at which time a prize will be given to the room in each school having the largest number of members.

Reports were given by the school chairmen, Mrs. Charles Kirkpatrick of High Street, Mrs.

George Schaub of Franklin, Mrs. George Gerhardt of Walnut and Mrs. Elliott Barnhill of Corwin. They each reported that plans were well underway for the booth at Pumpkin Show. Mrs. Schaub and Mrs. Gerhardt reported that their mothers were purchasing "Flutophones" for the children in their schools who were unable to purchase their own.

MR. AND MRS. Joe Bell supervised 43 children in the gymnasium while the adults convened in the auditorium.

Dr. Samuel turned the meeting over to the program chairman, Boyd Stout, who introduced Mrs. Berman Wertman and Mrs. Clyde Cook, 4-H Club advisers of the Circle Sew Straight Club. The Junior Circle Sew Straight Club, under the leadership of Miss Lois Cook, and the Future Mrs. Club, whose adviser is Mrs. Wayne Butler, also participated in the program.

Junior Circle Sew Straight Club members were presented by their adviser, Miss Cook, as she gave them 4-H Club certificates and club calendars.

Mrs. Wertman presented certificates to the Future Mrs. Club, in the absence of their adviser, Mrs. Butler.

Mrs. Cook presented certificates and calendars to the Circle Sew Straight Club, stating ATHENS, Oct. 13—Mother and daughter—her 11th daughter—are doing well.

Mrs. Frances Gillette of Stroud's Run gave birth to her 11th girl in 15 years just 24 hours before her 35th birthday. She has no sons.

The plump and smiling Mrs. Gillette said she "didn't mind at all" having all girls. When a visitor remarked that the father, Harold Lee Gillette, 41, might have been disappointed at not having a son, she replied: "You can't have everything. He'll just have to be disappointed."

The mother and her newest daughter, who hasn't yet been named, returned to their six-room home today. Stroud's run is five miles north of Athens.

The other daughters are Wanda, 14; Virginia, 12; Barbara, 11; Sue, 9; Shartn, 8; Frances, 7;

Further Consumer Credit Curbs Hinted As Being In Offing

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13 — A top official hinted today at further Federal Reserve Board consumer credit regulations as a means of avoiding "price fixing or government rationing."

Board Governor R. M. Evans, speaking in Atlantic City, said that restrictions could be increased if present ones are found inadequate.

Evans declared that credit

regulation is necessary to dampen inflation. He argued that restrictions "can help to maintain orderly markets and stability of costs and prices."

The Reserve Board official pointed out that "the regulation has been set up so that the terms and the items covered can be adjusted in the light of experience." Evans said:

"We are feeling our way along, starting out with what seems to be moderate restrictions. If these restrictions are found to be inadequate, they will be strengthened accordingly."

"If, later on, they are found to be more restrictive than is necessary, they will be relaxed. Our object is to maintain the flow of available goods at stable prices, if possible, without price fixing or government rationing."

Retailers, meanwhile, looked apprehensively at the government's steel allocation order and other restrictions and pleaded for at least a temporary stop in regulations.

The steel order, first post-war allocation directive, told producers to set aside between five and 25 percent of their output for defense purposes.

The order permits producers to sell 75 to 95 percent of their steel to civilian users, with the exact percentage depending on the type of steel produced.

William H. Harrison, chief of the National Production Authority, which issued the order, said the government stands ready to step up the allocation for defense needs if necessary.

Although the steel order will hit many fabricators and sellers, both wholesale and retail, their chief worry lay in consumer credit regulations.

Retail trade spokesmen told the government that any further tightening of credit regulations should be delayed until Dec. 8, to permit a close study of the situation.

M. I. Behrens, president of the National Retail Furniture Association, when a step further, demanding that restrictions be relaxed because, he said, they are "extreme" and "hit the poor man."

The retailers told Harrison that sales have been dropping since mid-September because of controls.

The steel order, even though it was issued in response to requests from both producers and consumers, will hit the civilian market through removal of some steel from normal channels.

Some sources have predicted as much as 25 percent curtailment in production of such goods as automobiles, refrigerators, and metal furniture.

Legion Raps Acheson

Diplomat's Ouster Being Demanded

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 13 — Some 100,000 tired American Legionnaires and their wives and families today began leaving Los Angeles where they had printed a stern program of future peace for the nation and elected Eric Coker Jr., of Dawson, Ga., as their new national commander.

The Legion closed its 32nd annual convention yesterday, "asking the nation's foreign policy and demanding the ouster of Dean Acheson as secretary of state and an entire 'reconstitution' of the State Department."

The attack came in a series of resolutions which also continued the Legion's drive for Universal Military Training and a state of preparedness to lessen considerably the odds of future wars.

The final session's first charge of dynamite came in the report of the foreign affairs committee. A shouting throng of delegates refused to accept the committee's wording of the clause on "reconstitution" of the State Department and, although not mentioning him by name, changed the resolution so as to demand the ouster of Acheson.

THE RESOLUTION in its original form condemned "secretaries of state, past and present," for failure to evaluate the dangers of Communism. By popular vote it was made to read to "condemn the secretary of state."

It was explained that Acheson

The World Champion Yankees split their total of $204,275.91 into 32 full shares after voting lesser amounts for several players.

The Philadelphia Phillies, National League champs who lost to the Yanks in four straight games, also split the loser's share of $136,183.94 into 32 full shares—$4,081.34 each.

22 County Men Enter Service Through Draft

Twenty-two Pickaway County men left Circleville Thursday for induction into the armed forces in Fort Hayes, Columbus.

Another group of 55 men left at the same time for pre-induction physical examinations.

Local draft officials said the second group should have contained 56 men, explained that one man, Walter Edward Brungs of Amanda Route 1, failed to report.

The officials said that persons who fail to report are given a short time to put in an appearance before their names are

Lie-Detector Tests Booked For Follrod

Dale Follrod, 37, of Circleville Route 3, was to submit to lie-detector tests Friday in London.

Sheriff Charles Radcliff said he has ordered the test to double-check on the man's confession that he is a stolen livestock "fence."

Follrod has been accused of receiving and concealing stolen livestock in connection with a rustling gang which has struck in six known counties.

The local tenant farmer signed a confession of his activities shortly after arrest earlier this week, implicating several members of the alleged gang.

Meanwhile, a Ross County man was taken into custody late Thursday in his home and now is being held in Pickaway County jail for investigation.

Deputy Sheriff Carl Radcliff said the man is believed to be a member of the organization which has stolen an estimated "tens of thousands of dollars" worth of stock within the last few years.

Arrests also have been made in Clark and Champaign Counties, while other men in Logan, Union and Greene Counties are being investigated.

No formal accusations have been filed in the case other than those against Follrod. He has been held for Pickaway County grand jury on bonds totalling $6,000 on two counts of receiving and concealing livestock.

PLAN WORTH $24 MILLION

Lewis Bares New Welfare Deal For His Coal Miners

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13—John L. Lewis launched today a $24 million program of aid for disabled members of his United Mine Workers union and their dependents.

The new benefits probably will start flowing next month and will round out a four-part program financed by the UMW welfare fund which collects a 30-cents-a-ton royalty on all coal mined.

The $24 million project, which will provide rehabilitation and maintenance aid, marks the completion of a reorganization of the welfare fund.

On the basis of 500 million tons of coal output annually, the fund would have approximately $150 million a year to spend on retirement.

Hungarian Purge Said Verified

LONDON, Oct. 13 — A purge of alleged traitors in the Hungarian army was revealed today in a dispatch from Budapest.

Reuters said Gen. Sandor Nogrady, Communist political chief of the Hungarian defense ministry, publicly acknowledged a recent purge in a speech yesterday.

Nogrady was quoted as saying: "Our corps of officers and generals was purged of traitors, imperialists, spies and other elements hostile to the people."

Soviet Delegate Jacob Malik vetoed Lie's reappointment to a second 5-year term in a closed session of the UN Security Council in the face of nine approving votes. Nationalist China abstained.

Expectations are that a race for the $40,000 post will develop, although Western delegations—including the United States—are strongly in favor of having the General Assembly extend the Norwegian's term indefinitely.

The outstanding candidates are Carlos P. Romulo of the Philippines, Sir Ramaswami

and disabled miners and their families.

The fund previously has been paying three other types of benefits: $1,000 death benefits; $100-a-month pensions, and hospital and medical care.

WELFARE officials have refused to disclose the costs of each part of the program. The fund has undergone a thorough overhauling since benefits were suspended last Fall and then resumed this Summer with the signing of a new two-year coal contract. Many phases were tightened up.

One source estimated that the rehabilitation and maintenance aid benefits announced today would cost about $2 million a month. No figures were available for the other activities of the fund.

STRING OF SHIPS GUARDS TRUMAN FLIGHT

President's Airliner 'Independence' Lands Chief Executive In Honolulu

HONOLULU, Oct. 13 — President Truman arrived at Hickam Field, Honolulu, at 7:46 a. m. Hawaii time (12:46 p. m. EST) today enroute to a dramatic mid-Pacific conference with General Douglas MacArthur.

Four minutes after his plane, the Independence, made a smooth landing, the President walked down the ramp and was greeted by Gov. Ingram M. Stainback, Mayor Wilson Farrington and military dignitaries.

President Truman smilingly declined permission to Stainback to place one of Hawaii's traditional welcoming leis around his neck.

The President reached Honolulu after a swift flight from the Fairfield-Suisun, Cal., Air Force base where the Independence took off at 3:08 a. m. (EST).

A string of seven ships—three Coast Guard cutters, three Navy destroyers and one submarine—tracked the presidential plane on radar throughout the flight and maintained continuous radio contact.

The President expressed hope that his meeting with MacArthur will bring forth "some contribution to the peace of the world."

Scene of the conference was not officially announced for security reasons but it was believed it may be Wake Island.

Wake Island is only about 10 hours from MacArthur's Tokyo headquarters and a flight from Honolulu takes about eight hours.

MacArthur's Tokyo headquarters indicated the United Nations commander will leave the Japanese capital "some time Saturday" (Tokyo time) to meet the President.

The President's appearance at the conference will be a brief one as the President will be back in San Francisco either Monday night or Tuesday morning.

Mr. Truman is to spend the greater part of Tuesday putting the finishing touches on the foreign policy speech he will make at the San Francisco War Memorial Opera House at 11:30 p. m. (EST) Tuesday.

In this speech the President is expected to make a direct report to the American people on the outcome of his Far Eastern policy conference with MacArthur.

During the hours he spent at Fairfield-Suisun last night, Mr. Truman toured the base hospital where he shook hands and talked with more than a hundred litter cases newly arrived from the Korean war front.

Newsman and photographers who met the President at the base were not allowed to accompany him on the hospital tour.

White House Press Secretary Charles G. Ross explained Mr. Truman did not want to "make a stunt" of his tour.

Ross said the President autographed casts of the wounded and talked at length to them.

Ohio GOP Given Chance To Gain Congress Seats

COLUMBUS, Oct. 13—Republicans appear today to stand an excellent chance of regaining control of Ohio's congressional delegation in the Nov. 7 election.

The GOP's best bet is to recapture the traditionally Republican second district in Cincinnati, which in itself would reverse the 12-to-11 majority now held by the Democrats.

In addition, they stand a fighting chance of winning the sixth (Portsmouth) district and the ninth (Toledo) district.

The Republicans also could pick up the congress-at-large seat held by Rep. Stephen M.

Young, Cleveland Democrat. The GOP candidate is Former Congressman-at-Large George H. Bender, also of Cleveland, the Cuyahoga County GOP boss unseated by Young two years ago by 113,584 votes.

THE NINTH district, GOP hopes are heightened by the entry of Frazier Reams, former state welfare director under Democratic Governor Lausche during the latter's first term, as an independent candidate.

If Reams should split the Democratic vote with Incumbent Congressman Thomas H. Burke, Former Congressman Homer A. Ramey could slip again into office.

By contrast, the Democrats' best hope of picking up a seat appears to lie in the 11th (south and southeastern Ohio) district, where Dr. Walter E. Brehm, Millersport Republican, who won by less than 1,200 votes two years ago, is currently under fire of Washington Columnist Drew Pearson on alleged kickback charges.

Brehm's opponent is young Mel G. Underwood Jr. of New Lexington, executive secretary to Governor Lausche in 1945-46

Mighty Mo Again Paces Shelling

36 Other Ships Join Bombardment

TOKYO, Oct. 13—Red Lifelines on Korea's northeast coast near Siberia and Manchuria were blasted for a second straight day by a 37-ship task fleet today as Allied troops to the south began a nutcracker drive to trap the remaining enemy army.

America's Battleship Missouri once again paced the new attacks from the sea against the peninsula's northeast corner. Additional hundreds of tons of shells and bombs smashed North Korean port, rail and industrial installations along a 130-mile coastal strip.

U. S. Navy headquarters in Tokyo declared Friday night that the paralyzing bombardment constitutes a "tremendous effort to implement the United Nations surrender demands" served twice on North Korea by Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

The Navy announcement hinted broadly that the shelling and carrier plane strikes will continue beyond their second day of action that has brought American war vessels within some 50 miles of Soviet Siberian waters.

Friday's renewed bombardments of the northeast coast came as South Korean troops far to the south smashed three miles inland from the captured eastern port of Wonsan.

THIS APPARENTLY was the start of a westward drive to slash across the peninsula to Pyongyang and thus keep thousands of enemy troops defending the approaches to the North Korean capital.

Sixty-five miles below Pyongyang, American troops captured the town of Hanpo, astride the main railroad to the Communist capital, and thereby cut the supply route for several thousand Reds fighting stubbornly at Kumchon.

Just before the Americans took Hanpo, 1,000 Communist troops moved out of that town four miles to the southeast to reinforce the defense of the Kumchon hub. They evidently walked into a trap without knowing it.

Hanpo fell to the U. S. First Cavalry Division's seventh regiment which rammed 17 miles above the 38th Parallel boundary and bypassed Kumchon in an "end run" move around the west flank.

Simultaneously, British and Australian troops of the British Commonwealth 27th Brigade outflanked Kumchon on the east and then wheeled westward in an effort to join the Americans at Hanpo.

Posse Seeks Missing Lad

BENNINGTON, Vt., Oct. 13—A large posse, aided by a bloodhound, pressed a frantic hunt today for a lightly-clad, eight-year-old boy lost in cold, rain-swept Vermont woodlands.

Paul Jepson Jr. vanished while his mother was leaving trash at the city dump. He was wearing only dungarees and a red wool shirt. The temperature dropped to 42 degrees during a right-long rain.

The dog followed the boy's trail for three miles along an unused logging road and then for a half-mile on a dirt road before it lost the scent.

Immediate Price - Wage Curbs Urged

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13—Immediate imposition of price and wage controls won the support today of the Senate's leading advocate of an excess profits tax on corporations.

Sen. O'Mahoney, (D) Wyo., chairman of the Joint Congressional Economic Committee, explained his decision this way:

"Price controls are bungled at best, but not having the tax, we ought to have controls right away."

O'Mahoney added that even if Congress pushes through a higher corporation tax when it reconvenes in November, some controls will have to go hand-in-hand with any tax curb on inflation.

Two other Senate authorities on price-wage controls said this week that both increased taxes and selective controls are urgently needed.

Sen. Flanders, (R) Vt., urged an increase in normal corporation taxes rather than an excess profits tax, coupled with a drive to boost sales of war bonds.

Maybank, (D) S. C., Senate Banking Committee chairman, stressed the immediate need for controls.

O'Mahoney declared: "Our two greatest dangers are Communism and inflation.

"We can control inflation most effectively through taxation. But we did not get a reasonable tax bill from Congress this year, and until we get one we are going to have to strengthen our controls."

O'Mahoney said that in his opinion the only thing holding up announcement of selective price-wage controls was the final selection of personnel to administer them.

showed that the fund that year spent $5,546,000 for death benefits; $84,206,000 for disability and widows' assistance; $30,366,000 on pensions, and $4,761,000 on hospital and medical care.

Miners are eligible for pensions at the age of 60 provided they have 20 years service, have retired since mid-1946 and have been employed for one year continuously immediately prior to their retirement. The latter restriction was added when pensions were resumed last summer.

was not specifically mentioned in the resolution because it is against Legion policy to name a person in a report of censure.

After William Varity, chairman of the committee, read the report, Delegate George Clear of Georgia touched off the excitement. He demanded that the wording be changed to "secretary," thus pinning the Legion's condemnation directly on Acheson.

"We should name names," should John Steele, former Illinois governor.

Outgoing National Commander George N. Craig said that "the wording of the resolution as changed will leave no doubt as to who is meant."

Driver Sleeps; Cars Collide

Morpheus took the blame for a two-car crash on North Court street at 4:30 a. m. Friday.

Officer Harold Green said an auto driven by Frank Grooms, 21, of Stoutsville, rammed into the rear of a parked car owned by Louis Drake at 231 1/2 North Court street.

The officer said Grooms told him he had fallen asleep. Both autos were damaged in the crash.

Grooms is to face a reckless operation accusation later in the court of Mayor Thurman I. Miller.

The secretary quoted Mr. Truman as saying he was "very much impressed" with the morale of the men and that there is no worry about the country's future with such young men fighting for it.

The President retired to his quarters on the plane after bidding goodnight to a party of advisers who are flying in a separate craft.

The group of advisers who left Fairfield-Suisun at 2:57 a. m. (EST) included Secretary of the Army Frank Pace Jr.; Gen. Omar Bradley, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff; Averell Harriman, special representative; Ambassador-at-Large Philip C. Jessup, and Dean Rusk, assistant secretary of state for Far Eastern affairs.

The gleaming silver and blue presidential plane landed at Fairfield-Suisun's gigantic base at 10:14 p. m. (EST).

The President and his party had a smooth and uneventful trip from St. Louis. After his arrival, the President telephoned the White House to inform the First Lady of his safe arrival.

Puff Of Wind Blamed For Plunge In Ditch

Thursday's high winds were blamed for causing at least one accident in Pickaway County.

Deputy Sheriff Walter Richards said a tractor-trailer outfit operated by James Boone, 28, of Dugger, Ind., left Route 22 and plunged into a field because of the wind.

The trucker told the deputy that he had looked down from the road to check his oil gauge and that a "big puff of wind" carried him from the road.

Richards said the furniture-laden outfit plunged into the ditch to the right of the highway, snapped a telephone pole, plunged through a farm fence and overturned onto its right side.

None of the furniture was spilled, the deputy said, and the driver was unhurt.

Many delegates refused to be surprised by the Lie veto, pointing out that the Cominform has blasted Lie since he joined wholeheartedly in the UN intervention against the North Korean Communists in Korea. In current assembly debates, he was frequently attacked by Soviet bloc delegates as "an agent of the American State Department."

and son of the Columbus federal judge.

Dr. Brehm, apparently not too concerned about Pearson's accusations, has replied that the charge against him "is not supported by documentary evidence."

Editor's Note: Statements by both Dr. Brehm and young Underwood appear in today's issue of The Circleville Herald in the form of paid political advertisements.

In the six-county Portsmouth district, Incumbent Democrat

James G. Polk defeated Former Congressman Edward O. McCowan in 1948 by a smashing 5,452 votes.

HOWEVER, IT must be remembered that 1948 was the year the rural vote backed off from the Republicans, and the sixth is a rural district except for Portsmouth, McCowan again is Polk's opponent.

In the second district, Incumbent Democrat Earl T. Wagner beat Former Congressman William E. Hess—again his opponent—two years ago by 8,094 votes—75,062 to 66,968—to shatter the GOP's years-long hold on the Queen City. The Republicans are out to recoup in this campaign.

Vivian Ann Smith, of Petersburg, Va., has lived a soldier's life for the past two years being at four different camps with her soldier father and mother. She suffered a deficiency of Vitamins B1, B2, Niacin, and Iron and as a result she was weak and run-down until HADACOL helped relieve these deficiencies.
Here is what her mother, Mrs. Myrtle Smith, said: "Vivian Ann lived a soldier's life as we were at four different camps in two years. These changes apparently had a great deal to do with making the child ill and irritable. She was skin and bones until seven weeks ago. I really had just about given up hope for her. Her skin was the color of chalk and she would not eat. She was fretful all the time and it made us all unhappy to see her suffering. We heard how much good HADACOL had done so many and now after six bottles she has gained 12 pounds. She has color in her cheeks and her disposition is perfect. She sleeps well. No one can imagine what a change it has made in all our lives."
HADACOL Is Wonderful
in the way it has helped thousands of folks whose systems were deficient in Vitamins B1, B2, Niacin, and Iron. HADACOL is so different because HADACOL helps build up the hemoglobin content of your blood (when Iron is needed) to carry these precious Vitamins and Minerals to every organ, and every part of your body—to the heart, liver, kidneys and lungs.
Give remarkable HADACOL a chance and if you don't feel better with the first few bottles you take—you get your money back. Only $1.25 for Trial Size. Large Family or Hospital Size, $3.50.

Answers Given On Loan Plan

Housing Credit Details Given

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13—Here are some questions and answers on the new federal housing credit controls:

Q. Why is housing credit being restricted?

A. To reduce the current serious inflationary pressure in housing and cut back home building in 1951 to a level which can be met with the materials and labor available after defense requirements are filled. A reduction from more than one million homes this year to about 800,000 in 1951 is anticipated.

Q. What do the regulations control?

A. The amount of money that may be borrowed to finance new construction of residential real estate.

Q. What is actually covered?

A. Loans for more than $2,500 with more than 18 months maturity on all one and two family unit housing except for: (a) loans on which written commitments were made before the effective date of the regulation, (b) conventional loans on housing construction started before noon of Aug. 3, 1950, and (c) certain hardship and special exemptions.

Q. When are the regulations effective?

A. Oct. 12, 1950.

Q. Who must comply?

A. LENDERS ARE required to comply with the down payment, maturity, and other provisions of the regulations with penalties provided for violation.

Q. What types of restrictions are used?

A. The principle restriction is for a minimum cash down payment based on the selling price of the property. The cash down payment may not be borrowed from any source, except for loans against equities in life insurance policies.

Q. The regulation also limits the maximum maturity of loans covered, and calls for certain minimum amortization requirements.

Q. What are the down payments?

A. For veterans, down payments range from five to 45 percent of the cost of the house on a sliding scale. For other borrowers, including FHA and conventional loans, terms range from 10 to 50 percent. Maturities

Unwed Mothers Should Be Given Aid, Panel Says

COLUMBUS, Oct. 13—The Ohio Commission on Children and Youth said today that more educational and case work facilities should be provided for unmarried mothers, regardless of their race.

The commission which will present its recommendations to the White House Midcentury Conference on Children and Youth in December, also proposed that psychiatric and psychological services be added to the medical facilities provided for unmarried mothers and children to be placed for adoption.

These recommendations were contained in the third list of proposals which will amount to almost 200 in completed form. Others were:

1. That public and private agencies providing foster care and placing children for adoption be helped to get better qualified personnel through improved civil service requirements, higher salaries and a licensing procedure for social workers.

2. That an adopted child should have the same legal status as the natural child as far as adoptive parents are concerned and no longer be considered a child of its natural parents.

3. That part of the law requiring notification of the spouse of the natural parent of the child born out of wedlock be deleted.

Federal Court Awards $20,000

FAIRMONT, W. Va., Oct. 13—A $20,000 damage verdict has been returned by the federal court here against V. N. Holderman and Sons, Inc., of Columbus, and one of its drivers, to Mrs. Pauline Higgins of St. Marys, W. Va.

The suit, and another filed unsuccessfully by Mrs. Higgins' husband, was based on an accident in March, 1949, on West Virginia Route 2 between Parkersburg and St. Marys, a truck of the Higgins' car and a truck of the road building firm driven by H. H. Hawk, of Pomeroy, O.

The charges, stemming from a Sept. 24 traffic accident, were: Leaving the scene of an accident, driving while intoxicated, drunkenness and driving without a permit.

Jamming 'Voice' To Be Tough Job Before Long

COLUMBUS, Oct. 13—Jamming the "Voice of America" broadcasting stations by the Soviet will be virtually impossible in 1951.

Foy D. Kohler, State Department official in charge of the "Voice," said here yesterday that by next year the Soviet Union will be "ringed" with radio bases, making effective jamming almost impossible.

Kohler, addressing the members of the Central Ohio Foreign Policy Association, said the

"most colossal jamming network ever devised" is failing to keep the Voice from the Russian people.

He estimated that 30 percent of Russian radio listeners regularly tune in on the Voice which operates 24 hours a day, piercing the Iron Curtain with 70 programs in 25 languages.

The 41-year-old Ohio State university graduate urged his listeners to take a "long-range view . . . to face Russia armed and united . . . but with cool determination, not war hysteria."

He denied that either the State Department or the Voice were "operating on the assumption that another general war is inevitable."

Every now and so frequently someone writes in to complain that he can't understand some of the tag-tag words and clip-clop phrases I use in this column.

Berger Chiefs See $250,000 Building Fund

A fund of more than $250,000 will be available to extend Berger hospital facilities by October, 1953.

According to the hospital board of governors, the first installment of a tax levy for the extension is now available. The tax levy was voted last year.

The board authorized investment of the sum until needed. The authorization was voted during a meeting of the board Wednesday night.

The board of governors also approved use of a new, comprehensive monthly report, compiled by Board Members Harry Heffner and James Shea.

The new report will give comparative figures and other information to form a complete picture of both the operation of the hospital and its financial status.

The board said it will also serve as a guide in determining when additional facilities are most needed to be built out of the tax levy funds.

Rent Control Revival Seen

CLEVELAND, Oct. 13 — Federal Housing Expediter Tighe Woods expects to ask Congress at the coming lame duck session to extend rent control legislation due to expire this year.

Woods addressed 100 area rent advisers from four states during the first session of a two-day panel discussion here yesterday.

The Washington rent chief said his office would recommend to Congress that the rental authority be empowered to reconrol areas that had been decontrolled, if the national defense requires it.

PEARSON ADDS TO CHARGE AGAINST BREHM

Washington columnist Drew Pearson renewed and expanded his charges against Congressman Walter Brehm in his column yesterday, while another Washington report said the FBI today completed a reinvestigation of accusations against Ohio's 11th District Representative.

The FBI, it was learned, made one investigation and sent its report to the Justice Department. It made a re-investigation of further check at the request of the Justice Department and has just concluded that assignment, it was learned.

The FBI never gives anyone a clean bill-of-health or any kind of a bill-of-health but merely reports its findings to the Justice Department, one of its officials pointed out.

Following is the text of Pearson's latest column on the case:

WASHINGTON — Congressman Walter Brehm of Ohio recently called me a liar for exposing his "kickback" manipulations with his office payroll.

I suppose it might be appropriate to remind Congressman Brehm that some of his ex-colleagues referred to me in the same language, notably ex-Congressman J. Parnell Thomas of New Jersey and ex-Congressman Andrew May of Kentucky, though they later went to jail.

However, I prefer to answer Congressman Brehm by giving some additional facts in the case and letting the public decide who is really guilty of telling lies.

The total kickbacks Brehm received from Mrs. Clara Soliday, a 75-year-old widow formerly employed in his office for three years, amounted to approximately $7,300.

Here is a month-to-month account of how this money was paid to Brehm from the time she went on his payroll January 10, 1945, until she was summarily discharged January 31, 1948, after having broken her arm.

Mrs. Soliday was paid $232.22 for the first part-month she was employed. Of this she had to kick back $100 to her boss. In the next five months, from February 1 to July 1, 1945, she received $332.72 monthly, of which she returned $150 each month to Brehm.

Her salary went up in July to $359.16 a month (Net after regular income and withholding taxes) and so did her kickbacks. From July to December 31, Mrs. Soliday regularly returned $175 of her monthly earnings to Brehm.

For the first six months of 1946 Mrs. Soliday kicked back $180 a month out of $373.56 net salary. From June 30, 1946, until she lost her job January 31, 1948, her listed salary was $442 a month. However, during all this 19-month period Mrs. Soliday kicked back $240 a month to Brehm.

In other words, during the entire 37 months the lady was employed, she was allowed to keep only half her earnings.

Since a congressman's payroll is financed by the taxpayers, it is a violation of public trust, as well as the law, for him to require kickbacks from office assistants. However, all Brehm ever told Mrs. Soliday was that the money she gave him was needed by the GOP "committee" in Ohio for "campaign" purposes.

Troubles Pile Up

The aged lady's troubles really began to pile up in late 1947. While vacationing with a daughter in Cleveland, Ohio, Mrs. Soliday fell and broke her arm. However, another kickback to Brehm was due and she hastened back to Washington on August 30, 1947, without stopping for medical treatment.

The arm was X-rayed in Washington and found to be broken, but before it could be set Mrs. Soliday went to the office of the House sergeant-at-arms on August 31 to cash her pay check. Then she went to a hospital, where she told a daughter, Mrs. Margaret Hiser, to get $240 from her (Mrs. Soliday's) pocketbook. She then informed her daughter to put the money in an envelope also in the pocketbook.

The envelope, believe it or not, bore Brehm's free mailing frank, plus his return address in Washington in Brehm's own handwriting. In other words, Congressman Brehm made sure that his office clerk wouldn't forget her monthly kickback while she was on vacation.

Before Mrs. Soliday left, he gave her an envelope which he had addressed to himself in which to return the money.

"Isn't this a lot of cash to be sending in a letter?" Mrs. Hiser recalls asking her mother.

Localites Plan Attending State Defense Parley

Ohio's civil defense program will roll into action on the grass-roots level—where it counts the most—with a meeting between state defense organization officials and representatives of 28 counties in Columbus on Oct. 30.

Pickaway County commissioners, Sheriff Charles Radcliff and Circleville Mayor Thurman I. Miller have been invited to attend the meeting.

Maj. Gen. Leo M. Kreber, state director of civil defense, said members of his staff would meet in the state office building with mayors, county commissioners and sheriffs from the central and southwestern part of the state.

Kreber said similar meetings will be held in Canton, Nov. 1; Cleveland, Nov. 2; Toledo, Nov. 6, and in Cincinnati, Nov. 8.

Up for discussion will be the development of local organizations, police services and plant protection, fire defense services, health defense programs and radiological defense.

Woman Given 1-20 Term

HILLSBORO, Oct. 13—Forty-year-old Thelma Kittrell of Hillsboro is under a 1-to-20 year prison sentence today for the Aug. 27 slaying of John H. Weaver, 34, during an argument.

The woman was sentenced to Marysville Women's Reformatory yesterday when she pleaded guilty to a manslaughter charge. Originally, she had been charged with second degree murder in the fatal stabbing.

Elinor Williams' Teen Tips

When a girl invites a boy to a dance given by her class, club or school, who pays?

They both do! But the rules of good manners (etiquette) decide very definitely who pays and what they pay for. The easiest way to remember it is this:

Girl invites Boy. He is her guest, so she buys the tickets for the dance. But Boy is also her escort, so he takes care of the rest of the evening's expenses and arranges for them in advance.

Since Boy is Girl's guest, it's up to her to make plans in advance to exchange dances with other couples, always keeping at least the first, intermission and last dances for her escort. It's correct to exchange several dances with friends and classmates, because dances are meant for mixing and mingling, not for "exclusive" couples who dance only with each other as if nobody else were there. It's not friendly!

The boy usually provides a corsage, transportation to and from the dance and perhaps a snack after the dance. If the boy is coming from out of town to attend the dance, however, the girl who invited him makes arrangements for transportation whether it's the family car or sharing a friend's car.

On the way to the dance, she gives him the tickets to carry in his pocket and present at the door, because men always take charge of tickets, no matter who provides them.

For tips on the correct care of oily skin with blackheads or pimples, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Elinor Williams at this paper.

Orders Awaited

DAYTON, Oct. 13.—The Montgomery County board of elections is awaiting an answer to day to the request issued for use of both voting machines and paper ballots in some of the county's 396 precincts to "avoid voting jams."

Dignified High Court OKs Will Favoring Dog

COLUMBUS, Oct. 13.—The Ohio supreme court, in all its august dignity, held solemnly today that bequests left to pet dogs are not subject to state inheritance taxes.

After the dog's death, Seabright's will stated, any residue was to be divided among five other beneficiaries.

The Wayne County courts held that the residue was taxable but that, inasmuch as the law did not specifically cover bequests to animals but only to "persons, partnerships and corporations," the amount spent the dog's upkeep was free of taxes. The high court refused to review.

THE WAY OF WEALTH

THE DAY of great personal fortunes is gone in the United States, which is now a land of small opportunities. Though it is still possible to amass modest wealth from a standing start, especially through exploitation of natural resources, it is impossible to pass it on from generation to generation because of estate and other taxes.

Trustees of the estate of the late Lew Wentz, Oklahoma oil man and capitalist, have just sent the federal government a check for $2,500,000 covering the estate tax on the Wentz holdings. The amount was made public through consent of the trustees, a provision required by law.

At the same time it was announced the Ponca City capitalist during his lifetime paid many times that amount in individual income taxes. It is also known that he gave millions to charity and to various causes. The same is true of the late Frank Phillips, who rose from barber to Oklahoma oil millionaire, whose estate is now in the hands of trustees, and which will eventually pay millions into the federal Treasury.

Almost without exception the modern rich man makes money the servant of society. Great research foundations have been established, libraries established, universities and colleges endowed. The wealthy must find their enjoyment in accumulation. Under modern tax schemes riches are not theirs to have and to hold.

IT CANNOT BE DONE

SOME Americans have developed a habit of trying to anticipate all the ills of the future and avoiding them through government action. Now it is proposed that all Americans, or nearly all of them, be made secure from an atomic bomb attack, if one is unleashed on the United States.

Proposals are made to provide underground shelters wherever atom bombs are likely to fall. This would cost several billion dollars in New York City alone, with Uncle Sam expected to put up the money. One deep thinker advocates an ambitious project of finding the blood type of every citizen while a shot of anti-tetanus is being administered to him.

With blood type known, the populace could be given treatment quickly following an atomic attack. The shot would reduce danger of infection after burns. Aside from the fact facilities for such mass preventive measures could not be provided in five years, the cost would be incalculable.

It undoubtedly would be just ducky if everyone's problems could be solved for him by the government. But this is impossible, try as the do-gooders may. If it were possible, there wouldn't be enough of that initiative which has made this nation great left to wad a shotgun. Except, perhaps, among the politicians who everlastingly keep at the task of inventing new ways to "help" the people.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

Mme. Sun Yat-sen was educated in the United States. She speaks and reads English. She has a broad knowledge of conditions in this country. She used to have many American friends, particularly in Macon, Ga., where she lived as a girl. In the years that I knew her well, she might have been called pro-American.

True, after Dr. Sun died in 1925, Mme. Sun became devoted to what she believed to be his intentions, the cementing of friendship between China and Russia, but she knew that Sun fought for an independent China, not for its enslavement to any foreign nation.

It is impossible to believe that Mme. Sun would of her own free will write:

"As we have contact with these two sides (Russian and American), through their foreign policies, we quickly see that they are as different as day is from night. One has all the brightness of day and all the warmth of the sun. That is the Socialist Soviet Union. The other is as forbidding as a wintry night with all its coldness. This is the imperialist band led by the United States."

This paragraph appeared in "Soviet Russia Today," a publication appearing in the United States, devoted to the cause of Russia's advancement. Further she says:

"It has become clear once again that America's capitalistic system is a Humpty-Dumpty which has fallen off the wall of history. It is cracked, and severely so. Therefore, the monopolists of Wall Street try to put it together again. They use the very expensive Marshall Plan, while the American people, and all peoples upon whom it is imposed, are made to pay for it. But even this astronomical expenditure is not enough to mend the broken egg, the situation gets urgent, and degenerates to the frantic stage. Measures of fear are then applied."

Then she concludes:

"The Chinese People's Republic leans to one side. We appreciate the principle of working with friends. We especially admire friends who have such a constructive way of living and know tolerance in their treatment of other people. We think that all such friends should correlate their efforts to construct a new society, to defend world peace so that society can prosper. Consequently, China will continue to follow the policy of leaning to one side, to work with all those who earnestly strive for honest cooperation. And in this period of history, China is pointing the way for the whole Far East."

So far, the United States has produced no effective counter-propaganda among the peoples of Asia, except the military power and genius of General Douglas MacArthur. We are proving by military force that we have the means to fight Soviet satellites, perhaps even Soviet Russia. But we have not stated our case; we have not established that hope lies with us. The "Voice of America" speaks, but it does not penetrate the minds and hearts of these peoples. Otherwise, India would not have made so many errors in policy.

There is considerable agitation in Washington for price control. The OPA may be lurking just around the corner, having taken over the spot so long occupied by Prosperity.

Complaint that philanthropy is fading out in the world is unfounded. Look at benevolent old Uncle Sam.

DIET AND HEALTH

Ailment That May Be Serious

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

AMONG common ailments, sore throat gives place to none in the frequency with which it attacks people of all ages. In this sense it is truly an illness which plagues mankind from the cradle to the grave.

Most people think of sore throat as a fairly minor discomfort when, as a matter of fact, it is always a source of possible danger in that it may lead to permanent damage to the heart, kidneys, or other vital structures, since germs from the throat are often carried by the blood to these organs and there entrench themselves.

Caused by Germs

In most cases, sore throat is caused by germs belonging to one of two great families—the streptococci or the staphylococci. Occasionally, however, diphtheria germs are responsible. Hence, it is important, particularly in children, to make a culture from the throat to determine whether or not diphtheria germs are present. Of course, all children, before they are one year old, should be given injections of diphtheria toxoid to prevent this disease.

Another cause of sore throat is Vincent's angina or trench mouth. This condition can also be diagnosed by making a throat culture.

White Cells

Sore throat may occur in a condition known as infectious mononucleosis. In this disorder, there is first a decrease in the number of white cells, followed by an increase in the type of white cells known as lymphocytes.

Still another cause of sore throat is herpes of the tonsils. Herpes are like fever blisters and they may occur on the tonsils. It is likely that they are due to an infection caused by a virus. The throat also may be affected by yeast-like organisms, including one known as thrush.

Sore throat may be one of the symptoms in a group of more serious disorders. For example, there is a condition known as agranulocytic anemia, which results from a reaction to certain drugs. Here there is a decrease in the number of white cells in the blood, a feeling of tiredness, and enlargement of the lymph glands.

Prompt diagnosis is important so that the offending drug may be avoided and proper treatment given without delay.

Early Symptoms

In leukemia, in which there is an increase in the number of white cells in the blood and enlargement of the lymph glands, sore throat is often an early symptom.

Sore throat occurs in colds, influenza, and measles. Since this condition can be produced by so many causes, and because of the dangers of a neglected sore throat, prompt attention by the doctor is important when sore throat is present. He will determine its cause and suggest proper treatment. In most of the ordinary cases, the use of one of the antibiotic drugs, such as penicillin or aureomycin will clear up the disorder rapidly.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

R. H.: What causes cracking in the jaw?

Answer: Cracking in the jaw, in most cases, due to a slight inflammation in the joint on which the lower jaw moves.

CHAPTER THIRTY-ONE

SALLY WAS watching her shrewdly and Perry had an uneasy feeling that Sally could read her mind. Sally grinned and scrubbed out her cigarette, and looked at Perry beneath her lids.

"Sally, you back on your heels, didn't you?" she drawled coolly. "You'll soon learn there's no such thing as a secret here, pal—and Miss Mehitty's connection with Sanna is no secret and never was. Miss Mehitty is held in awe and frightened esteem by all the mountain people. It's been known for a long time that Sanna was consorting with old Mehitty, and people have been very worried about what the results might be—for Phil."

"If Sanna likes having her fortune told—" Perry began a trifle wildly, but the look on Sally's face dried the words on her lips. "Shooey on fortunes!" said Sally. "Sanna herself does a pretty nifty job of 'telling' the cards and 'reading' the tea-leaves—surprised you haven't found that out. Oh, no, Sanna never went to old Mehitty to get her fortune told. She went to her 'yarb-medicine' to feed to Phil."

Perry gasped, and her face went white.

"Sally, what an awful thing to say!" she gasped.

"Ain't it?" Sally agreed heartily. "It's an even worse thing to do—and now look what happens. After Phil has been given up by all the doctors, and by visiting specialists brought here at an enormous expense, and everybody has agreed he was hopelessly crippled, Sanna stuffs him full of old Mehitty's Magic Elixir—and presto! Phil walks again!"

Perry could only stare at her, wide-eyed and shaken.

"See what it's going to mean to all of us at the hospital and in the nursing service?" Sally pointed out. "People who have believed in old Mehitty, who have insisted on pouring out the medicine we prescribe for them, are going to rise up in such numbers that we are going to have to start all over again educating them; we haven't been as successful as I'd like to pretend, if it comes to that. But we have managed to wean a few of them away from their miserable 'yarb-potions.' The ones we get in the hospital, mostly, their families sometimes reluctantly agree that we can do more for them than Miss Mehitty. But, oh, good grief, Perry. Can you imagine what's going to happen now?"

Sally was so deeply troubled that she was near tears.

"Sally, you don't believe Miss Mehitty had anything to do with Phil's improvement?" demanded Perry hotly.

Sally's eyes met hers and fell away, and there was a tinge of shame in Sally's cheeks, even as she said, "Don't be a fool—of course not."

Perry studied her shrewdly, and suddenly she said quietly, "But after all, queer things do happen that not even the finest doctors and scientists can explain. Is that the way you feel about it, Sally?"

"Of course not," Sally protested indignantly. "It's just that—well, sometimes when we at the hospital have worked our hearts and heads out over some poor devil, and have had to give up, old Mehitty's come to bat. Gosh!"

She ran her hands through her tumbled curls and lit another cigarette with hands that shook a little.

"So now Phil's going to get well," she said very slowly, and drew a deep hard breath. "Well, hang it all, if he's going to get well, who the heck cares who gets the credit?"

"Atta girl, Sally," said Perry gaily.

Sally studied her for a moment, and then she said quietly, "How's Jay taking all this?"

Perry tensed but made herself say crisply, "How would you expect? Phil is his dearly loved friend, and so he's naturally tickled to death."

"Oh, sure—I didn't mean that," said Sally. "What I meant was—well, all of us at the hospital were practically fit to be tied when we found Jay was getting the old heave-ho and Dr. Litton was taking over. Oh, sure, Litton's swell. We're all crazy about him. But Jay's really our boy! And we felt—and still feel—he's getting the dirty end of the stick. And kindly don't try to tell me that Jay wasn't hurt and insulted and humiliated at being kicked out, after all he's done for Philip, and that—that—"

"I'd rather not discuss it, Sally, if you don't mind," said Perry icily.

Sally stared at her. Suddenly she stubbed out her neglected cigarette and stood up.

"Do I smell something burning?" she asked sweetly. "Or it could be that torch you're carrying for Jay, couldn't it?"

Perry's eyes blazed and she stood up.

"I think that will be quite enough, Sally," she said crisply.

"Oh, don't ruffle your feathers, Perry, pal," begged Sally, unexpectedly gentle and coaxing. "I tickled silly to find it's Jay, and not my Steve."

Perry gasped, and felt as though

she had taken a step in the dark and dropped into a hole.

"Sally, you couldn't be such a fool," she stammered, and remembered with bitter embarrassment the night of the "play-party" when she and Steve had stood out in the moonlight and Steve had asked her not to use him to whip Jay in line.

"Oh, you'd be surprised how much of a fool I can be where Steve's concerned," said Sally with deceptive mildness. "I've just about decided to stop wasting my time trying to persuade these stubborn mountaineers that I know better what makes 'em tick than Miss Mehitty. I expect you'll be attending a wedding, Perry, in about a month."

Perry said quietly, "I won't be here, Sally. I'm leaving as soon as Dr. Litton replaces me."

"Oh-ho!" said Sally, and her eyes widened a little. "Jay's going to let you go?"

Stinging color poured into Perry's face and she said icily, "Since Dr. McKenzie is no longer on the case, he can hardly mind if I take myself off, can he?"

"Oh, off the case, sure, if you want to," said Sally. "But out of Pineville? I've got a hunch Jay is going to raise Cain."

"Sally, you're being very silly, and if you don't mind, I'd like a shower and an hour's nap and a fresh uniform before I relieve Hayden, who's doing double duty. So if you don't mind?"

Perry's tone was perfectly polite, but Sally knew there was nothing to be gained by arguing with her. So Sally shrugged, turned to the door, and said over her shoulder, "Sorry, Perry. I didn't mean to be a pest. But if you're still here, that had to be made of honor at a mountain wedding is still good! Bye now. I'm off to battle Miss Mehitty—I'm curious to see her latest hat, anyway. Bet it's something Sally Victor dreamed up. Only wouldn't Sally V. have herself a conniption if she could see the way her masterpiece is being abused?"

She went out of the house and into her car, and Perry stood for a long moment, taut and still, before she turned and went up to her own room. She was desperately tired, but she had never felt more wide awake in her life and she knew that there was no hope at all of her getting a nap. However, a warm shower and a fresh uniform would help to ease her weariness. She wanted to be as efficient and immaculate as possible when Jay arrived, and her mouth thinned a little at the thought of him.

FOLKS OF FAME—GUESS THE NAME

1—Born in London, England, May 23, 1799, this humorist and poet, earned his first money by revising a new edition of a well-known book. His Odes and Addresses was published in 1825. His serious verse did not bring him fame, but his series of the Comic Annual did. The Dream of Eugene Aram first showed his full poetic power. The Song of the Shirt, Bridge of Sighs, Song of the Laborer were other poems which depicted the appalling conditions of the industrial worker of his day. Faithless Nelly Gray, Faithless Sally Brown, I'm Not a Single Man, etc., are in humorous vein. Ode to Autumn, The Water Lady, Flowers, show his love of nature and fanciful side. He died May 3, 1845. His name, please?

2—This French revolutionary leader was born in Arras May 6, 1758. In 1793 he was elected as one of the deputies to the States-

General, attaching himself to the extreme left wing. As his influence grew, he was appointed public accuser. King Louis XVI fled the throne and the Reign of Terror began. He was elected first deputy for the Paris National convention, and joined with others in urging the king's execution. Elected to the first Committee of Public Safety, he became the actual ruler of France. In the drama of the Revolution, dark intrigue and desperate struggles of opposing parties he sent Georges Jacques Danton and other leaders to the guillotine, and he reigned supreme. His power, however, waned, and he was arrested, wounded, and next day (July 28, 1794), he and 20 others were sent to the guillotine. This was the end of the Terror. Who was he? Try, Stop Me

The ingenuity of the American business man cannot be exaggerated. One young man, for instance, approached Bernard Baruch with the idea of opening a brokerage office in the Empire State Building, with part of the office in the lobby and the other part on the 100th floor. He explained: "With this set-up, a customer can put in an order to buy a stock in the lobby, then take the elevator and sell on the 100th floor. This will assure him of getting in at the bottom and selling out near the top."

Another bright young man suggested a new sales service that would equip all private cars in Scotland with taxicab meters, thereby enabling the owners to watch the meters mount up and enjoy the thought of how much money they are continuously saving.

I don't say these ideas have been adopted; I merely claim they are ingenious.

If you have a friend who might be improved by a touch of humility, try quoting to him this Chinese proverb: "The sea, by lying low, receives all the waters of the world."

Some "flappers" of the post-World War I period had permanent "rouge" tattooed on lips and cheeks.

Hundreds of Specialists Flown to Korean Front

Special to Central Press

WASHINGTON—Now that the crisis apparently has passed, it can be disclosed that for a while it was touch-and-go whether key military personnel would get to Korea in time to fill serious gaps. The outbreak of war in Korea caught the United States Far Eastern forces lacking hundreds of skilled men in such fields as radar, fire control and communications.

Surface transportation was out of the question so the Military Air Transport Command (MATC) was called upon.

MATC responded in rousing fashion. Planes were speeded from European duties and hundreds of specialists were flown to the battlefield.

In the first weeks of the war, MATC enlisted the support of the commercial airlines, but now that the situation is in hand the civil planes and pilots are being returned to the airlines.

Business Women's Club Is Given Background On 'Crusade For Freedom'

Jaycee Member Is Speaker

Cirleville Business and Professional Women's Club members signed the "scroll" of the Crusade for Freedom Thursday night at a dinner in Pickaway Arms given in observance of National Business Women's Week to be held Oct. 15 through 21.

Charles Richards, representing Cirleville Junior Chamber of Commerce and guest speaker, reminded club members that only ten years ago Great Britain faced danger and disaster of the Nazi blitz with a spirit of cooperation. He said:

"Crusade for Freedom" is our chance to unite for a common cause. Communism would stamp out all freedom. 'Crusade for Freedom' is a dynamic campaign to show where we, as Americans, stand.

"We are confident of our own strength. But how about the people abroad? We must show them we are working with them to halt Communism."

Richards explained that Russia's "big lie" propaganda must be combated by dramatically demonstrating our "big truth"—freedom and peace for all. He said:

"A 20-ton bell of bronze has been cast in Croyden, England. It is a freedom bell. It is a modern liberty bell which American people are giving to the world."

"On United Nations Day Oct. 24, the bell will be installed and dedicated in the American zone of Berlin. In the base of the bell tower there will be enshrined for all time Freedom Scrolls bearing the signatures of millions of American citizens."

At the business session conducted by Mrs. Cliff Beaver, president, plans were made to combine National Business Women's Week and Pumpkin Show activities.

Miss Elizabeth Hilyard reported that the prize winning BPW float of Jackson festival would be available for Pumpkin Show parades. The float will be for display only and not compete with local floats.

Plans were completed to attend church service Sunday as a group.

It was decided to meet for coffee in Franklin Inn at 9:45 a. m. Sunday and go in a group to First Methodist church service.

Pumpkin Pie Contest May Be Televised

Negotiations to have the final judging of the pumpkin pie baking contest at this year's Pumpkin Show televised are underway with two TV stations.

Last year, the judging was televised on film as was the presenting of the grand prize by Governor Lausche.

Representatives of General Mills Inc. said dickering for the show is underway now. If technical difficulties prove too much of a problem, the contest again will be filmed and played back over a TV network later.

The grand prize in this contest will be a Westinghouse television set. The set, secured through the cooperation of Harpster and Yost, is on display in their window.

Contestants for this grand prize will come from the victors of the final judging of the two daily Pumpkin Pie baking contests.

One of the contests, sponsored by General Mills, will award daily prizes of Betty Crocker Tru Heat irons, General Mills automatic toasters, and the new Betty Crocker picture cookbooks.

Contestants will be required to use either Mozart or Country Colonel pumpkin and Betty Crocker Crustquick, in the manufacture of the pie. Each pie entered must be accompanied by a label from a can of either of the pumpkin and a box top from a package of Crustquick.

The second contest, sponsored by Pumpkin Show Inc., places no restrictions on the ingredients used. Daily prizes will be offered amounting to $40 for the four days.

Eighteen independent grocers are cooperating with the General Mills contest. From Circleville are Funks, Charles A. Smith, Palm's, Black's, Ward's, Glitt's Ice Cream, North End, Held's, Mumaw's, Messick's, Walters', Glitt's Grocery, Collin's, Anderson's and Wolf's. In Williamsport there is the Horch store and in both Ashville and South Bloomfield, the Clarence Cloud markets.

HOW TO USE THE BIBLE

READING SCRIPTURE: "MAKES THEE WISE UNTO SALVATION," SAID ST. PAUL

Scripture—Psalms 19:7-11; Acts 8:26-39; II Timothy 3:14-17.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL.
THE BIBLE is still the world's "best seller," despite the immense output, through the ages, of secular writers. Millions of copies are printed and distributed over the globe every year.

How many read the Scriptures? That cannot be answered with any certainty. How many read it with understanding? That too is problematical. Our lesson tells us of one who read, earnestly, but not understanding what he read, was told by a messenger from God and became the first Gentile convert to Christianity.

The psalmist knew the value of Scripture reading. He says: "The law of Jehovah is perfect, restoring the soul: The testimony of Jehovah is sure, making wise the simple."

The "simple" does not mean the stupid, but those who have a childlike trust and are willing to learn.

"The precepts of Jehovah are right, rejoicing the heart: The commandment of Jehovah is pure, enlightening the eyes."

"The fear of Jehovah is clean, enduring forever: The ordinances of Jehovah are true, and righteous altogether."

"More to be desired are they than gold, yea, than much fine gold: Sweeter also than honey and the droppings of the honeycomb."

"Moreover by them is Thy servant warned: In keeping them there is great reward."

Gold—even "much fine gold"—does not make men happy. How many rich men have found that out. If they gain all the things money can buy, they may still be lonely, misunderstood and unhappy.

Now we come to the story of the first Gentile converted to Christianity. The Apostle Philip—one of the seven appointed to administer some secular business in the Jerusalem church—was called by an angel of God to go to the road that ran from Jerusalem to Gaza.

He hurried to do the bidding, and saw a very important Ethiopian who was treasurer to Candace, queen of Ethiopia. He was riding in his chariot from Jerusalem where he had been for worship, and as he rode he read in the book of Isaiah. The Spirit directing Philip told him to go near and join this man. Philip did so, asking the Ethiopian if he understood what he was reading.

"He was led as a sheep to the slaughter; And as a lamb before his shearer is dumb, so He opened not His mouth: In His humiliation His judgment was taken away: His generation who shall declare? For His life is taken from the earth."

Who was the prophet speaking of? asked the eunuch. Of Jesus, answered Philip. And he proceeded to tell of Jesus and His teaching; how He was killed by unbelievers and buried, then rose from the dead.

As they proceeded on their way, the Ethiopian said, "See here is water; what doth hinder me to be baptized?"

"If thou believest with all thine heart, thou mayest," said Philip. The man said he believed that "Jesus Christ is the Son of God."

Both men went into the water and this unnamed man was baptized.

St. Paul, writing to his "beloved son," Timothy, sums up the benefits of reading the Bible. "But continue thou in the things which thou hast learned and hast been assured of, knowing of whom thou hast learned them: And that from a child thou hast known the Holy Scriptures, which are able to make thee wise unto salvation through faith which is in Christ Jesus."

"All Scripture is given by inspiration of God, and is profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteousness."

"That the man of God may be perfect, thoroughly furnished unto all good works."

We may not grow perfect by studying the Scriptures—that is not possible for human beings. But we can be greatly helped to that end if we study the Scriptures, understand them, and try earnestly to live as Jesus would have us.

Quaint Old City Holding Its Nose

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—Quaint old Georgetown, Washington's residential section that provides its antiquity, stinks.

But 80 Georgetown residents who protested the stink agreed to hold their breaths for a little while more when they learned that the admitted source of the stink, a rendering plant, has spent $20,000 in an effort to unsmell itself. The work should be done by April 1, and the residents agreed to wait until then before taking further action.

Biffle Certain Dems To Beat Senator Taft

MIAMI, Oct. 13.—Senate Secretary Leslie Biffle has predicted that the Democratic Party will retain control of the House of Representatives and "increase its majority" in the Senate in the November elections. He also forecast a Democratic ic victory over Republican Senator Robert Taft in Ohio.

Biffle, a close friend of President Truman, is in Miami to attend a conference launching the city's proposed Inter-American Cultural and Trade Center—a multi-million-dollar project aimed at bettering hemispheric trade and friendship.

In an interview, he said:

"Without any ifs, ands, or hesitations, we will beat Taft in Ohio, we'll beat Capehart in Indiana, we'll beat Millikin in Colorado."

Lush Saloon Boss Says
Yankees Drink Lighter

NEW YORK, Oct. 13—Civilization may be thrown for a loss from time to time, but by and large it continues to stagger onward and upward, bearing aloft that strange device "excelsior."

This is the conclusion of Billy Riorden, international bon vivant and host at the newly reopened Rockefeller Saloon and Rainbow Room, 65 stories up amid the clouds of Rockefeller Centre.

Riorden has the theory that civilization is still on the upgrade. He points with pride to the disappearance of the Bronx cocktail and the Pousse Cafe as proof positive that man is not only getting better but soberer. "You won't believe it, but in my salad days, a man about town not only drank Bronx cocktails, a corroding mixture of orange juice and gin, but," said Riorden, shuddering convulsively, "when he was able to drink a Pousse Cafe layer by layer, he was a Scott Fitzgerald character cum laude."

"You cannot tell me that a nation that prefers the Old-Fashioned to the Bronx cocktail and an honest Martini to a Pousse Cafe is not marked by destiny for great things," he said as he surveyed his new kingdom, the resurrected Rainbow Room.

THE OLD-FASHIONED is definitely America's favorite cocktail, he opined, with the Martini in second place. Furthermore, despite much calumny on the part of visitors from abroad, Americans don't lap up liquor faster than any other nationality, in the experience of Riorden.

Riorden, who looks like a cross between an Irish pixie and the late Mayor Jimmy Walker, has been called to preside over the Rainbow Room, which has been closed since Jan. 1, 1943, in its new manifestation.

The room, first opened by the Rockefeller clan as a full-fledged night club 16 years ago, is now open to the public only for cocktails, from 4:30 to 10 p. m., or long enough to get lushed up if one puts his mind to it.

The Rockefellerers were planning to open it full blast just as the Korean war came along. Plans were hastily revised and it will be open for cocktails and snacks until a big-scale war closes it down again or full-scale peace warrants a full-time night club.

Riorden, who grew up in the days when a deb checked her girdle at the ballroom door and a gentleman was naked without hip flasks, has stocked the Rainbow Room with a vast supply of milk and soft drinks.

"Young folks just don't drink like their old folks used to twenty-five or thirty years ago," he said, and he marvelled at the younger generation's Chesterfieldian manners.

"Unbelievable," he murmured, "when you remember their mothers."

Setup Planned
By U.S. Army

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13 — The Army has announced formation of a new psychological warfare division that may use guided missiles to broadcast messages and drop leaflets to enemy populations.

Brig. Gen. Robert A. McClure, head of the division, said it is possible to build a guided missile that will "rotate around a target, dropping leaflets from one end while broadcasting a message to the population from the other."

The new division is being formed within the Army's administration section, but McClure said that in a matter of weeks it will assume a place as a separate operating division of the Army.

McClure said his division will have leaflet and loud speaker units for operation at the front, psychological warfare groups to broadcast from mobile and fixed radio stations in rear areas, officers to advise fighting units, and intelligence and evaluation groups assigned to all major headquarters.

In illustrating the difference between his division and the Army intelligence section, McClure cited the example of the capture of a Communist lieutenant-colonel in Korea recently.

He said intelligence was interested in the technical information the officer gave, while his division was interested in why the officer joined the Communist Party, what he thought he would get out of it, whether any promises had been realized, what the soldiers and people were thinking and similar information.

Pearson's Story Against Congressman Brehm Is Not Supported By The Evidence

FBI Has Twice Investigated These Rumors

Fellow Americans:

I am not going to bore you with a lot of details. When Drew Pearson first came out with his unwarranted attack against me I publicly branded it as a malicious lie based on a report which my opposition had given him to put out.

Those of you who recall the 1944 election will remember that another smear attack was made against my character by the same unscrupulous outfit who is now opposing me.

The charges at that time were proved to be without foundation and the one which they brought out this time is more malicious and baseless than their 1944 charges, if that is possible.

You may also recall that the honest, Christian voters rose up in protest against such tactics.

In order to try and conceal their identity and still put out their lies and insinuations, they first forged the name of A. L. Rowe to a malicious ad during the May Primary. Investigation showed that A. L. Rowe worked for Roscoe Underwood in Perry County.

In a further effort to give the impression that they were not engaging in their 1944 tactics Drew Pearson was chosen to fire the opening gun. In this way they could then reprint Pearson's articles and hope that no one would ever suspect the part they had in originating the attack.

In 1944 the articles against me were signed J. E. Moore, Sec'y Underwood for Congress Committee, New Lexington, Ohio. Now in 1950 they are signed J. E. Moore, Sec'y 11th District Tax Payers Committee.

When I first learned that the Dept. of Justice had received a letter from a "Democratic Politician" containing weird and unfounded accusations, I not only insisted that the statements in the letter be investigated but also that they extend the investigation to include everyone who had ever been connected with my office. This investigation was completed on August 25, 1950, as shown in letter above at right.

This investigation showed that the evidence obtained did not support the charges contained in the "politicians" letter.

About four weeks after the FBI had submitted their report and felt that it was a "closed book" Mr. Pearson came out with the same story and the Justice Department requested the FBI to make further inquiry into the same subject.

Now the second investigation has been completed and still no evidence is found to back up or substantiate the lie which caused the investigation to be made in the first place.

Now let's summarize:

In an effort to take me out of Congress my opposition cooked up one of the most diabolical plans ever conceived to try to accomplish their objective.

Following the Communistic pattern they took a few simple facts and constructed a "Frankenstein Monster" of lies and distortions which would do credit to Stalin.

Then by one means or another they probably got an affidavit as an alibi for their act and turned the entire kit and caboodle over to Drew Pearson.

On Sunday evening, (of all days) September 24, Mr. Pearson spread this lie before the world. A few papers evidently more interested in the sensational than the facts, not only printed this lie word for word as put out by Pearson, but in some instances slanted it further in favor of my opposition.

On top of this hundreds of dollars are now being spent to reprint the Pearson story in the District papers. It is interesting to note that these articles are appearing over the signature of J. E. Moore who in 1944 was Sec'y to my present opponent's Committee for Congress.

The voice of Jacob but the hand of Esau is readily heard and seen.

On two separate occasions the FBI has investigated this entire story and found that the evidence does not support the lies which my opposition has been putting out.

I know my opposition has powerful connections in Washington and I would not be surprised at anything. However, it is time to find out if a group of irresponsible, power hungry, individuals can put out such a tale and get by with it.

It might not be amiss to quote from a letter written by Mrs. Soliday at the very time my opposition says I was "forcing her" to do certain things. This letter is shown at bottom right.

It seems to me that the argument simmers down to this: Either you can accept the report that the FBI found no evidence to support the charge, or you can accept Drew Pearson's sensationalism based on family gossip.

If there were any reliable or documentary evidence to support such charges wouldn't they have shown up during the FBI investigations?

Do you still wonder why it is becoming more and more difficult to get honest men and women to run for public office.

"OFFICE OF THE DIRECTOR

FEDERAL BUREAU OF INVESTIGATION
WASHINGTON 25, D. C.

September 13, 1950

Honorable Walter E. Brehm
House of Representatives
Washington, D. C.

My dear Congressman:

I wish to acknowledge your communication of September 13, addressed to Mr. Nichols, wherein you inquire regarding the status of the recent investigation which was conducted by the FBI.

In response to your specific inquiry the investigation requested of the FBI was completed under date of August 25, 1950.

Sincerely yours,

Signed/J. Edgar Hoover"

May 3, 1947

"Mr. L. H. Soliday
1130 W. Fair Avenue
Lancaster, Ohio

Dear Mr. Soliday:

I am the widow of Dan Soliday, formerly of Logan, Ohio, and I am quite certain that we are related.

For the past three years I have been employed in the office of Congressman Walter E. Brehm and was terribly shocked and hurt to read your letter which came this morning. I asked Dr. Brehm if he intended to reply to it and he said: "No, there is no need of starting an argument with Mr. Soliday."

I then decided I would just drop you a note myself to let you know that Dr. Brehm is not a narrow-minded politician. If he were he would not have employed me in his office, as he has known for years that my politics were not the same as his.

I know from experience that Dr. Brehm has always fought for the under-dog, and I know that it is because I was a widow that he was kind enough to take me into his office.

It is perfectly all right for you to disagree with him on any subject, but I do hope that this letter will help convince you that he is broadminded and I sincerely trust, for my sake, that any letters which you might write him in the future will deal with the subject under discussion and not be a narrow-minded partisan political letter.

Very truly yours,

Signed/Clara Soliday"

Sincerely yours,

Walter E. Brehm, Member of Congress

KNOWLEDGE TO BE USED

New Red Infiltration Seen Behind Ward Assignment

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12 — Angus Ward, the United States consul-general who proved more than a match for the Chinese Communists in Mukden, today faces an entirely new experience.

He is going to a post where he will have almost nothing to do—unless he makes work for himself.

Ward's appointment to be consul general at Nairobi, Kenya Colony, on Africa's swartling east coast, has been announced by the State Department. Along with the announcement came a vigorous defense of the appointment to the remote outpost, which has been under congressional criticism.

Ward himself is reported to be unhappy about the appointment—but taking it like a soldier. It will be his first assignment to an "unhealthy" post, where one year's service gives the appointee 18 months toward retirement time. He will receive $11,600 yearly plus an entertainment allowance.

The 57-year-old foreign service veteran will face the torrid climate of the Equator for the first time in his 25 years of experience. Previously he had worked with the American Relief Administration in Finland and Russia following World War I.

LATER WARD served in Manchuria, Tientsin, Moscow, Vladivostok and Tehran. His last previous assignment was to Mukden, where Chinese Reds imprisoned him and heaped indignities on him and his staff.

Ward screamed his protests so loudly and stood up so strongly to his inquisitors, who tried to force him to sign a "confession" in the Communist style, that he was ultimately released.

Despite the attack on the apparent shelving of Ward, responsible officials maintain that he is going to a post where his experience in Communist infiltration tactics will be very valuable.

Assistant Secretary of State for Near East and African Affairs George C. McGhee is said to have asked for his service. It is also argued that Ward, after his experience with the Communists in Manchuria, would not be acceptable to any Iron Curtain country, where his experience would be most valuable.

While officials explain publicly that Ward will be responsible for a big Point Four development program, it is known privately that more serious questions are involved.

There have been signs of Communist activity in Kenya Colony, bordering the Indian Ocean. Were the Russians to drive through the Middle East, the defense bastion of the Democracies would have to be in mid-Africa. Ward's knowledge of the situation, it is said, would then prove invaluable.

But, for the time being, he is likely to lead a dull life. The equatorial colony's population of four millions contains only 33,500 Europeans, mostly British, 67,000 Asians, mostly Indians, and 21,400 Arabs.

Until we have devised a formula for transmitting to Asiatics the American ideal, the American conception of a life in freedom, we shall have to continue to use force against innocent peoples who have been propagandized against us over a period of 30 years by Russia, which lies to them and confuses them.

During that period, except for handful of missionaries, nothing has been done by the United States to counteract this Russian propaganda. We have spent millions of dollars, but have hardly made an impression. The reason, of course, has been that those who spoke for us, the OWI and such agencies, had nothing to say.

I speak of this in Asia with which I have familiarity and where I follow events closely. I wonder what has been accomplished by both sides in other parts of the world, in Central and South America, in Africa, in the Arabic countries.

For instance, why did so many Arab countries abstain from voting on the Korean resolution—the one giving MacArthur authority to cross the 38th Parallel? What do they think of us? What have they been taught to think of us? If our propaganda is to count, we need to know why it fails to take hold of these peoples.

Further Farm Product Hikes Not Expected

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13 — A government farm economist says that seasonal supply increases should hold back further price hikes of farm products during the rest of this year.

These price advances, accelerated sharply since the Korean war, have already started to slow down. Agriculture Department officials point out in their current review on the demand and price situation. Highlights of the department's roundup are these:

1. Average prices received for meat animals this Fall may be "steady to lower," with a drop expected in hog prices.

2. Average prices received by farmers for whole milk at wholesale will rise throughout the rest of 1950, but will remain a little below last Fall.

3. Prices of most fats and oils during 1950-51 probably will stay above the level of a year earlier.

4. This Fall and Winter, feed prices are expected to average somewhat higher than in the same period of 1949-50.

5. Growers are likely to get higher prices for most of their deciduous fruits this Fall than last.

6. Most commercial truck crops produced for fresh market will bring somewhat lower average prices to farmers this Fall than in the Fall of 1949.

Four Redbirds Are Promoted

COLUMBUS, Oct. 13—The Columbus Redbirds, Little World Series champions, announced today that Catcher Bill Sarni, outfielder Larry Miggins and Pitchers Kurt Krieger and Bob Habenicht have been promoted to the parent St. Louis Cardinals.

At the same time, the Birds have obtained Catcher Vern Rapp, who caught for the 1949 Birds; Pitcher Ellis Deal, who starred with the club in 1949 and '50, and Pitcher Al Papai, who was with the Boston Red Sox, Cardinals and St. Louis Browns.

CHS FAVORED IN CONTEST

New Boston Standing By To Repel Mass Invasion

New Boston will know Circleville is in town Friday night, so local fans believe.

More than 500 local sports followers, the Circleville high school band and the rampaging CHS Tiger football team will invade the community for the Friday football game.

Charles Walters, president of the Circleville Booster Club said reservations have been made on the "football special" train for 600 persons.

"We had 500 tickets sold as of Thursday," Walters said. "We'll make reservations for 600 in case someone wants to buy tickets at the station."

The "special" is scheduled to leave the Norfolk and Western Railway station at 5:15 p. m. Friday complete with band and rosters.

CIRCLEVILLE'S crackerjack football team, however, will

George May Seeks Corner On Golf Tourneys

CHICAGO, Oct. 13—George S. May seemingly is trying to corner the market on golf tournaments.

The colorful Chicago promoter of the All-American and World Championship Tourneys yesterday offered the Professional Golfers' Association a $25,000 guarantee to bring the 1951 Ryder Cup matches to his Tam O'Shanter Club.

May already has men and women's divisions in both the amateur and professional classes of his All-American and World Championship events. He wants to sandwich the Ryder Cup matches between these tournaments.

His offer to the PGA stipulates that the play between the 10 best American and the 10 best British professionals must be held Aug. 7 and 8. It also specifies that all the Ryder Cup golfers remain in Chicago to play in his $50,000 World Championship tournament.

PGA President Joe Novak said May's offer was the "best" one thus far received but added the organization's executive committee will have to vote on it.

Meanwhile, the British professional golfers' chieftain, Cmdr. R. T. C. Roe, and his group are being sounded out to determine whether they can comply with May's requests.

Tiger Juniors Tally 44-0 Win Over Lion Cubs

Circleville's junior Tiger football team roared into a decisive 44-0 victory Thursday over host Washington C. H. Blue Lion Cubs.

The local juniors posted 13 points in the opening quarter, added six in the second stanza, tallied 13 again in the third period and finished with another 12 points.

Coach Dick West said he dressed only 25 boys for the game and that all of them played.

Featured for Circleville in scoring were Mike Brown, John Wilkes, Tom Graef, Ronnie Bennington and Fred Davis.

Bennington and Davis both tallied twice during the fracas, while the other three scorers netted a single score each.

In the last few seconds of play in the lopsided ball game, Bennington intercepted a Washington pass as the gun boomed and raced unopposed for the score as the host club headed for the locker room. Washington was called back to defend the extra point attempt.

Bennington netted an extra point for the locals with a run while Tom Elsea completed the only other conversion via a quarterback sneak.

Next test for the Tiger juniors will be held at 4 p. m. Thursday at the home of the Hillsboro Papooses.

Redlegs Acquire Another Hurler

CINCINNATI, Oct. 13 — The Cincinnati Reds hoped they had another Ewell Blackwell today with the acquisition of Pitcher Jim Blackburn of Tulsa.

The right-handed Texas League hurler won 21 games and lost only seven during the 1950 season. He struck out 132 batters and pitched 37 1-3 scoreless innings during one period of the season. He is 26 years old and his home is in Cincinnati.

have been on the road nearly two hours by that time.

At least two changes in the CHS lineup appear imminent for the tilt.

Harry Redman, although nursing a broken nose, is to start at left guard for the Tigers in the contest, replacing Veteran Guard Gene Kerns, who suffered a rib hurt in last week's 89-0 runaway over Hillsboro.

And Phil Heise, former right halfback, probably will start in the game at defensive left halfback in case Circleville should lose the pre-game coin toss.

With the exception of Kerns, the Tigers have weathered their training sessions in good shape this week, Coach Brudzinski said. Kerns probably will dress for the tilt, although he may be used only sparingly.

Circleville is highly favored over New Boston in the contest and will be seeking its 23rd win in four seasons without loss or tie.

LAST TIGER loss occurred in the next-to-last game of the 1947 season.

Probable starting lineups for both teams in the tilt are:

Circleville
LE—Don Mancini.
LT—Bill Gillis.
LG—Harry Redman.
C—Bill Stout.
RG—Lowell Thomas.
RT—John Cockrell.
RE—Dave Coffland.
QB—Jerry Rooney.
LH—Dixie Harris or Phil Heise.
RH—Jim Cook.
FB—John Valentine.
New Boston
LE—Jim Shridan.
LT—Walt Innes.
LG—Jerry Lewis.
C—Don Rankin.
RG—Leo Lawhurn.
RT—Harold King.
RE—Jack Sexton.
QB—Gary Borden.
LH—Marvin Newman.
RH—Frank Seth.
FB—Paul Thomas.

Meanwhile, as Circleville challenges New Boston Friday night the other four South Central Ohio League teams will be testing their strength against each other.

Washington Blue Lions are scheduled to test the mettle of Hillsboro during the evening, the same team which the Tigers smashed last week. Outcome of the game may give local rosters a comparison of the relative strength of its traditional foe for the season finale at Washington.

Wilmington's Hurri-cane, who came closest to breaking the CHS winning streak this season by suffering only a 32-25 loss here, will tangle with Greenfield McClain during the night. The Hurricane is favored over the McClain clan.

Circleville and Greenfield lead in the SCOL chase to date.

The CHS'ers have scored two wins in as many starts this season, while Greenfield posted a 14-12 victory over Washington in its only league test to date.

Wilmington, Hillsboro and Washington are ranked in the league cellar with losses in each of their league starts to date.

Yankee Rally Beats 49ers

NEW YORK, Oct. 13 — The New York Yanks are in sole possession of the National Football League's American Division lead today, but only because of their last-period recuperative powers.

The Yanks scored twice in less than five minutes midway through the final quarter last night to subdue the San Francisco '49ers, 29 to 24, before a rain-spattered crowd of less than 5,000 in Yankee Stadium.

George Taliaferro took a pass from George Ratterman for one touchdown. Buddy Young scored the other on a 14-yard run after Taliaferro's 27-yard punt return set up the tally.

Dudley Hanover Wins Feature

TOLEDO, Oct. 13 — Dudley Hanover and Star's Pride captured both sections of the Matron Stakes which featured last night's Grand Circuit harness racing program at the Fort Miami Raceway.

Dudley Hanover, owned by the Haye Fair Acre Stable of DuQuoin, Ill., captured the $6,870 event for 3-year-old pacers while Star's Pride, the property of E. Rolland Harriman of Goshen, N. Y., and L. B. Sheppard of Hanover, Pa., raced to victory in the companion 3-year-old trot, worth $6,629.

Harry Pownall drove both winners to straight-heat triumphs.

Ez Sez Reign To Last As Long As Louis'

NEW YORK, Oct. 13—Ezzard Charles expects to be heavyweight boxing champion "as long as Joe Louis was."

Ezzard said yesterday, when he received the Police Gazette's silver championship belt in New York, that he sees no reason why he can't be the titleholder for a decade or more.

Charles indicated that he will establish a "Bum of the Month Club," just as Louis did. His first title defense is slated for Nov. 30 in Cincinnati, Ezzard's hometown, preferably against Freddie Beshore.

Ezzard kayoed Beshore in the 14th round in Buffalo in August. Post morteming his 15-round decision over Louis two weeks ago, Charles said he discovered early in the fight that the former champion was vulnerable to a right cross.

He added that, while he respected Joe's right, he noticed that Louis hesitated before using it. Ezzard said:

"I suppose his reflexes have grown slow, so I could get out of the way."

Tommy Farr Plans Comeback At Age Of 36

LONDON, Oct. 13—Welshman Tommy Farr, who finds the comeback trail less rocky than did Joe Louis, wants to make Freddie Beshore his next stepping stone toward a heavyweight title fight.

Utter contempt for the present crop of heavyweights enticed the man who once went 15 rounds with Louis out of a decade of retirement at the age of 36.

In his first effort—the same night that Louis was decisively by Ezzard Charles — Farr kayoed a nondescript Dutchman, Jan Klein, in six rounds.

Farr's reasons for singling out Beshore as his next foe are highly logical. To begin with, Charles, now recognized as champion everywhere but in Britain, already has defeated Beshore once and is trying to arrange another meeting on Nov. 30.

That, as Farr sees it, makes Beshore in direct line of ascent to the throne. Farr's manager, John Harding, already has cabled Beshore an invitation to meet Tommy in an English ring.

Army Set For Hungry Michigan

Cadets Cautious About Coming Tilt

NEW YORK, Oct. 13—Can Michigan Purdue Army? Army Coach Earl Blaik asked this of himself in a moment of vague suspicion today, 24 hours before his undefeated Black Knights take the field against Michigan in Yankee Stadium.

Blaik's Cadets are comfortable nine-point choices to sashay the Wolverines on the stadium grid tomorrow, but Frank Leahy's Notre Dame eleven was an even fancier choice to dissemble Purdue last week—and Purdue won it, 28 to 14.

Blaik has informed the Army players, therefore, that if they expect an easy time tomorrow afternoon they had better watch the game on television.

"This Michigan team is tough," Blaik said. "It's hungry, and it's saving its best game for us."

Michigan Coach Bennie Oosterbaan has demurred. "My best back," he said, "has a bad ankle. What are we going to do?"

The bad ankle belongs to the triple threat, Chuck Ortmann.

BUT HE HAS been working well in practice, and is expected to be in action when needed.

The word is, actually, that Michigan will depend mostly on its defensive strength to shackle the Army ball-carriers. The Wolverine line, headed by Tackle Al Wahl, is a good one, and might be able to flag people like Frank Fischl, Jim Cain and Gil Stephenson, for a while, anyway.

Should Army's running game fall short, Blaik will tell his talented offspring, Bob Blaik, who plays quarterback in lieu of the splendid Arnold Galiffa, to throw a few.

This would bring into play the pass-catching ability of Dan Foldsberg, 185-pound end who is considered Army's finest single player.

Thus if Army doesn't win one way, it is ready and able to win another. There seems no logical possibility that Michigan can take this one.

But as long as there are Purdues, guys like Earl Blaik will chew their fingernails far into the night.

40 Ohio Staters Head For Indiana

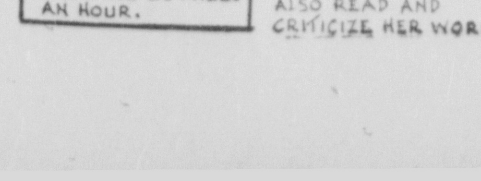

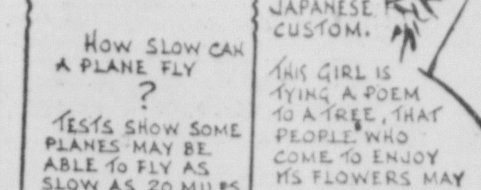

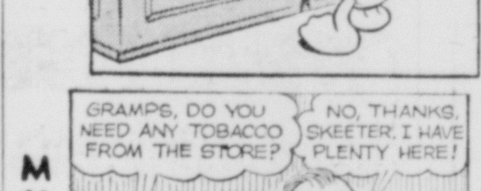

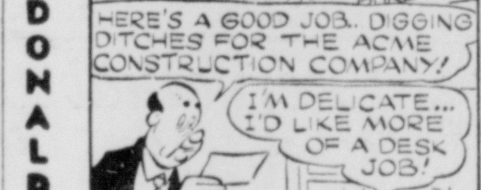

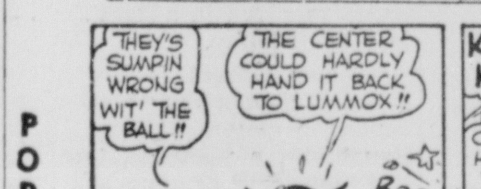

COLUMBUS, Oct. 13 — Forty Ohio State men of football invade Indiana today—Bloomington to be exact—sincere in their ability to hand the Hoosiers their first defeat of the season.

Indiana has tied Nebraska, 20-20, and beat Iowa, 20-7, while the Buckeyes dropped their opener to Southern Methodist, 32-27, and roared back to demolish Pittsburgh, 41-7.

The air was filled with passes in a practice drill yesterday as the Scarlet squad unleashed them, hauled them down and batted them away in a successful attempt to simulate the Indiana passing attack.

County Agent Asks: 'Is Now Good Time To Go In Debt?'

Questions Cited For Answering

"Is now a good time to go in debt?" is a question which Larry Best, Pickaway County agricultural agent, says local farmers should ponder carefully.

Best provokes further thought with:

"Most men who have gone ahead financially have at some time taken risks—sometimes large ones. But, is this the time for you to go into debt, to start taking those risks?"

"Everyone knows that during the last 10 years, farming paid higher rates of return than the cost of borrowing. It paid a good farmer to build up his business with borrowed money. But since early 1948, prices have been going down—the profits in farming have narrowed. So, the question of going into debt is more difficult to answer. And the farmer himself the one person who can answer it."

Best points out that L. J. Norton, of the University of Illinois, has listed five questions every farmer should ask himself before he borrows to expand the size or intensity of his farm business:

1. DO YOU THOROUGHLY understand the business you plan to expand? Don't just jump at a venture because your neighbor is getting rich in it. Try it out on a small scale with your own money or take plenty of time to study all the angles of the new business.
2. Is the probable direction of the nation's price levels favorable to expansion? Because nobody knows which directions prices this year will go, your decision will have to be based on how much you are willing to gamble and your guess whether we are to have peace or war.
3. What is the size of the new debt in relation to your present capital in land, buildings, cash? Remember, you're risking more than only the loss of the money you borrowed. You also risk the loss of cash and capital you already own.
4. What is the burden created by the debt in relation to your probable income? Will the extra income from your expanded business cover the interest on the loan and pay the debt itself?
5. Do you have a well-thought-out and specific plan for using the borrowed money? You'll need one—first to help make your decision; second to help convince the person you're asking for a loan.

MR. AND MRS. Joe Bell supervised 43 children in the gymnasium while the adults convened in the auditorium.

Dr. Samuel turned the meeting over to the program chairman, Boyd Stout, who introduced Mrs. Berman Wertman and Mrs. Clyde Cook, 4-H Club advisers of the Circle Sew Straight Club. The Junior Circle Sew Straight Club, under the leadership of Miss Lois Cook, and the Future Mrs. Club, whose adviser is Mrs. Wayne Butler, also participated in the program.

Junior Circle Sew Straight Club members were presented by their adviser, Miss Cook, as she gave them 4-H Club certificates and club calendars.

Mrs. Wertman presented certificates to the Future Mrs. Club, in the absence of their adviser, Mrs. Butler.

Mrs. Cook presented certificates and calendars to the Circle Sew Straight Club, stating
